EASTMAN COMMITS SUICIDE AT 77

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 14.—(AP.)—George Eastman, 77, millionaire manufacturer, philanthropist and big game hunter, shot himself to death today, his physician announced, in his East avenue home here.

Dr. Audley D. Stewart, announcing that Eastman had shot himself after putting all attendants away from his bedside, said Eastman left ths note:

"To my friends:
"My work is done. Why wait?"

Dr. Stewart was Eastman's personal physician for many years.

TELLS FRIENDS TO LEAVE

Dr. Stewart said that Eastman, in ill-health for many years, apparently had recovered to a degree that was very encouraging to his friends. He apparently was in such a mental state, however, that he shot himself after sending all his friends from his room.

A moment after they departed, said Dr. Stewart, they heard the shot and returned to find him dead.

Dr. Stewart said the suicide occurred at 12:50 p. m. the fact of Mr. Eastman's death was not known, however, until some time later.

BIG GAME HUNTER

He was known the world over as a genius of the photographic industry, art collector and big game hunter, as well as for his philanthropies. His benefactions at the time of his death had passed the $75,000,000 mark.

Eastman was a bachelor, with no near relatives. He had been in failing health for a long time, but remained chairman of the board of the Eastman Kodak Company, a $200,000,000 concern he fostered after beginning his business career at 14, salary $3 a week. On April 7, 1925, he resigned the presidency in favor of William G. Stuber.

Today

Three Cheers for Hindenburg.
What Ails Us?
Better Than a Poet.
Curecino Killed, Thoroughly.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

NO COMFORTING news of the Lindbergh child. A mistaken identification, in which a well-meaning public official persisted, caused several newspapers to print extras, announcing the child's recovery.

A child, thought to be the missing baby, had fifteen teeth, seven more than the Lindbergh baby.

IN THE GERMAN election, Gen. Von Hindenburg led Hitler by more than seven million votes.

The old General, who has served the German republic so faithfully, will succeed himself in office, undoubtedly. Wisely, the Germans, educated and thoughtful, decide not to put their nation in the hands of a self-appointed, energetic but imitation Mussolini.

On the day before election there was a boom in German securities. The Berlin exchange apparently foresaw the election result, as our Wall street so often foresees it.

IN GERMANY, 44,000,000 are entitled to vote, and 37,660,377 of them voted.

Thus far, this country has shown no such interest in its public affairs. Millions of our most efficient complainers never vote.

What does this country need?

What do conditions demand?

What would make wheels begin turning?

MORE MONEY.

Shudder at the word "inflation," if you must, and shiver with the creeps at mention of "silver," if you choose. But in some way, and of some kind, this country should have more money.

It needs more money, not to stop petty hoarding by individuals, but to end disastrous hoarding by banks, blamed if they hoard, and blamed if they do not "maintain liquidity."

IN THE Sahara Desert one man will kill another, for a cup of muddy water, and Arabs kill their camels, to get the water hoarded in the camel's stomachs.

That does not happen on the edge of Lake Superior, where there is plenty of fresh water.

Hoarding would stop, dread of new enterprises would vanish, if more money were really plentiful. You remember when the boom was getting under way, and everybody said:

"The cheapest thing in the world today is money."

Business men that have borrowed and paid faithfully, all their lives, cannot borrow now. How can they employ the idle?

Those that lent money for new building and labor employment lend nothing now. Each clasps his money to his breast, as though it were his last crust of bread on a raft in mid-ocean.

A MAGNIFICENT hotel, one of the finest in the world, that cost seventeen millions, was sold a few days ago, land, building and five million dollars' worth of furniture, for less than

WESTERNERS HUNTED IN N. Y.; SPITALE HINTED ON TRIP

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The 13-day mystery web of the baby Lindbergh kidnaping today extended its gossamer threads into Ohio, Denver and Detroit.

Authorities, still virtually handcuffed to a blank wall of clues, grasped eagerly at these slender lines of information which promised potential results. They were:

1—A member of the Detroit "Purple Gang" was reported from Sandusky, O., to have supplied "an important and hot tip" which was being checked by Ohio investigators.

2—The activities of a "suspicious gang from Denver, Col., which "came to New York from the West via plane," were being run down.

SPITALE TRIP HINTED

The possible connection of the "Purple Gang" in the case was further supported by reports that representatives of Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, the two underworld ambassadors, were on a secret trip to Michigan.

Spitale and Bitz, officially appointed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to conduct negotiations with gangdom for the return of his child, announced that they intended to follow an important "lead" in Detroit as soon as their trial for liquor smuggling was finished.

They were acquitted in federal court of the charge and disappeared again into the shadowy haunts of the underworld.

The trace of the long-missing Lindbergh heir developed further geographical ramifications, most of which collapsed upon close investigation.

PROFESSIONALS DOUBTED

The pendulum of theory continued to swing for and against the belief that the kidnaping was the work of professionals.

A person close to the Lindbergh family and the state police today said:

"If the child had been stolen by any established underworld characters the police of some city or community would have had a definite tip on it by now from their 'stool pigeon' sources of information.

"The efficiency with which the child was kidnaped at first indicated that the kidnaping was the work of professionals.

"What appears to have complicated the whole case is that it now appears that the child

MOVE FOR DRY VOTE DEFEATED, 227-187

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(INS.)—Prohibition forces maintained control of the House today when they defeated a motion to consider the Beck-Linthicum "home rule" resolution submitting the question of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to the states in the spirit of a referendum.

The anti-drys mustered 187 votes—by far the greatest strength they have shown since prohibition—but 227 voted against bringing the amendment to the floor for a record vote.

The vote smashed the hopes of anti-prohibition forces for any favorable action in the present session looking to repeal of the prohibition amendment.

However, Representative Linthicum, after the vote was announced, said:

"I think the vote was wonderful. The fight is all but won. All we need is one more election.

"The best estimate I had of our strength was 175 votes, and to tell the truth I had no real basis for that figure. To get 187 votes on a clean cut issue

Baldwin Twp. Pupils Flee Flames

Two hundred pupils of the Horning School, Baldwin Township, were marched from the six-room frame structure when fire was discovered on the second floor at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Firemen summoned from Broughton held the flames to the one room.

Pupils of the school were marshaled by their teachers when the fire was discovered, and all left the building in safety and order. Fire Chief J. J. Scherban said the fire was caused by an overheated stove and did $300 damage.

AUDIT CHARGES CITY FUND IRREGULARITIES

Alleged irregularities in the City Treasurer's office were detailed in a 200-page report made today by Price, Waterhouse & Co., for Controller James P. Kerr. These included:

2—There is no control over traffic violation tags to assure that all revenues for violations are received by the city.

3—All cash received by Traffic Court was deposited in the name of the magistrate and $800 in interest on these accounts had not been reported to the treasurer by former Magistrate William J. Soost.

It recommended the elimination of the office of delinquent tax collector and the merging of its activities under adequate supervision with the City Treasurer's office.

The report, which was sent to Council by Controller Kerr, declared that the will of Sarah Crone left $4,500 so that work could be done in the women's ward of the Tuberculosis Hospital, but that the money was used instead to buy materials for a new home for the hospital superintendent, and for the purchase of a motion picture machine and a radio.

With regard to Traffic Court, the report said the principal weaknesses are the absence of adequate control to assure that all revenues are received by the city and the lack of an adequate internal check such as might be kept by the clerical staff.

The report deplores the system whereby all cash received by Traffic Court was deposited in the name of William J. Soost, then magistrate. On October 1, 1931, the report said, deposits amounted to $23,747. It was also pointed out that $800 in interest on these accounts had not been reported to the City Treasurer.

The report recommended that all Traffic Court money be transferred to the accounts of the City Treasurer and that interest be remitted promptly. Traffic Court should be required to return cash for all tags issued, the report de-

CITY RELIEF BOND MEASURE PASSES

Citizens of Pittsburgh will vote on a $5,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief at the April 26 primaries.

City Council, with Councilman P. J. McArdle the lone objector, this afternoon approved an ordinance submitting the bond issue to the people.

A short time before, Mayor Charles H. Kline had announced that the law prevents him from declaring a public emergency and setting up a $500,000 appropriation of city funds for immediate relief work. He told newspaper reporters:

"I have been discussing the legal aspects of the case.

"The city solicitor informs me that legally there is no emergency existing and that the act of 1911 states that the mayor and controller cannot certify that an emergency exists until it actually does.

"The Emergency Association informed us that its funds will not run out until March 20.

"Therefore, it is plain to be

DAVIS URGES COAL BILL IN SENATE QUIZ

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP.)—Regulation of production was held today by Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, to be the only salvation of the bituminous coal industry.

Testfying to a Senate committee, the former Secretary of Labor urged favorable action on his bill for coal production stabilization. He said it was an emergency economic relief measure bound to resuscitate one of the nation's fundamental industries.

Designed to eliminate "cut-throat competition" in the industry, the measure would legalize regional associations of operators and agreements by them on production and price of the fuel, so long as they are "in the public interest."

It also would waive anti-trust law restrictions against such combinations by making agreements subject to approval of a government commission.

HITLER SAYS REDS AIDED HINDENBURG

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, March 14.—The personality of President Paul von Hindenburg, pitted against Adolph Hitler and Germany's restless masses in the German republic's strangest election, emerged victorious today as the country's moderate parties crushed their rising radical opponents.

Although falling by the narrowest of margins of obtaining the majority which was needed to re-elect him, the 84-year-old president was virtually assured of being maintained in office in the run-off to be held April 10.

As voters crossed all party lines to defend or challenge the Hindenberg-Bruening rule, the veteran soldier-statesman, failed of election by only 168,453 votes.

RETURNS ANNOUNCED

Provisional final returns were announced today as follows:

Von Hindenberg (incumbent), 18,661,736.

Hitler (Fascist), 11,328,571.

Thaelmann (Communist), 4,971,079.

Duesterberg (Nationalist), 2,517,876.

POST CARDS USED TO SAVE STATE CASH

HARRISBURG, March 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today said his office soon will begin answering as much correspondence as possible on postcards and if the plan results in a reduction of expenses it will be extended to other state departments. He said:

"Careful investigation shows that the ordinary letter costs the taxpayers from 15 cents up to 25 cents apiece. The most expensive part of such a letter is the time taken in dictation, transcription, addressing, folding and filing and the stamp."

The Governor estimated that with postcards, it will cost about 5 cents apiece for buying, printing, writing and mailing as compared with from 15 to 25 cents for a letter.

He said the stationery used in his office costs, including letter head and envelope, about a half-cent apiece. He said he believed postcards would be cheaper and that their use may save the taxpayers thousands of dollars a year. He added:

"In view of the reduced income of the commonwealth resulting from the depression, I hope that persons who receive postcard answers will understand that the purpose is to save money for the taxpayers of Pennsylvania."

was stolen by some person or persons not linked to the underworld organizations."

A conference of police officials believed to have been summoned by the famous aviator, was held in the Lindbergh home last night.

NEW PLANS HINTED

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state police commander, intimated new plans for prosecuting the quest for the recovery of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., were mapped out. He refused to give details, however.

It was understood those taking part in the discussion of fresh means to prosecute the hunt for the abductors included Maj. Charles Schoeffel, Schwarzkopf's assistant; Sergt. James Pinn, confidential agent of Police Commissioner Mulrooney, New York; Inspector Harry Walsh, Jersey City, and Col. Henry Breckenridge, counsel and adviser to Lindbergh.

Schwarzkopf refused to say at the end of the conference whether any one or several definite persons were under suspicion. He declared:

"It is impossible to answer at this time as to whether there is any person or persons under direct suspicion as a direct answer might have a tendency to obstruct any police activities now in progress."

Many clues investigated in the past 24 hours merely added to the growing list which, on examination, proved false.

FOUR QUESTIONED

Four persons were detained in Tennessee because they had with them a baby resembling the Lindbergh infant, but after consultation with the Lindberghs, it was definitely established the child was not the missing baby.

Incidentally, this resulted in the revelation that some definite identifying characteristic of the Lindbergh baby was not made public in the description of the child broadcast through the country.

Another trail which led to Pennsylvania apparently was dropped this morning. Police at York (Pa.), after telephoning with authorities at Hopewell announced they were no longer investigating what was considered one of the oddest episodes reported since the abduction.

DEMANDED $100,000

Dr. M. B. Shellenberger, osteopath, said a man with a sub-machine gun entered his office, demanded and received a treatment.

The patient then forced the doctor to accompany him to the waiting room, where a woman and baby sat, he asserted. The man, according to Shellenberg, asked:

"Do you recognize the baby?"

When the latter looked nonplussed, the man said:

"It's the Lindbergh baby."

Shellenberger declared the man gave him a note addressed to Lindbergh. It demanded $100,000 ransom, after which the baby would be delivered today or tomorrow at Bedford, Pa.

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., March 14.—(INS.)—Activities of an underworld "mob" which flew east from Denver, Col., were being investigated in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state police commander, announced today in the official midday communique. It said:

"Information was received that a suspicious gang from Denver, Col., had come east by plane and was engaged in mysterious activities in and around New York.

"This is being investigated, and to date nothing of importance has been ascertained. This investigation will be continued with a complete checkup of all their movements.

LONG ISLAND CLUE FAILS

"Information was received of suspicious circumstances concerning a family in Jamaica, L. I., to the following effect:

"Early in the evening of the kidnaping, a large automobile was driven speedily away from the house by one man. About 2 a. m. it returned with two men and a woman and a blond baby.

"There has never been a baby in this home before and since that time the baby has been heard to cry, but has not been seen by the neighbors. An immediate investigation was started and during the night the investigations was completed, revealing a man and a woman, together with their child, a 2-year-old son, was visiting this family in Jamaica and all the people in the house had been properly identified.

"No one was arrested in Hopewell, N. J., this morning by any officers, and we have nothing to indicate that such an arrest is anticipated.

"Word was received from Sandusky, O., that important information was available there. This was immediately referred to the prosecutor of Erie County, Ohio, with the request that he investigate the circumstances reported and give us his findings. This matter still was under investigation and no report received as yet."

seen that there will be no emergency until that time."

Council passed the bond issue ordinance over the protests of the Retail Merchants' Association.

A letter from that organization, signed by its secretary, Edgar J. Kaufmann, told the councilmen that in the opinion of the association members the issue would place an additional burden on taxpayers and that the city issue and a similar county issue probably would go to the polls together, the former passing and the latter being defeated.

The letter also suggested that political and welfare leaders meet, arrange plans for revised taxation to more evenly distribute the burdens at present imposed and ask Gov. Gifford Pinchot to call a special session of Legislature to enact the legislation necessary to put the tax changes into immediate effect.

In voting against the bond issue ordinance, Councilman McArdle said:

"We are trying to buy somebody a bottle of milk now and have those same people pay for it 20 years from now.

"This is a burden on the man who is struggling to pay for a home.

"A lot of wealth is escaping the obligations that the poor taxpayers has to assume."

Council also received a letter from William G. Kelly, business representative of the Carpenters' District Council, charging that the Emergency Association was hiring skilled mechanics for the wages of day laborers.

Kelly protested against the bond issue if the money is to be expended under direction of the Emergency Association.

LINDY LETTER SUSPECT HELD

BRISTOL, Pa., March 14.—(AP.)—Oscar C. Christ, 38, of Croydon, was arrested today a short time after he was alleged to have mailed the second of two letters to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Chief of Police J. L. Jones, of Bristol, said Christ admitted he wrote both letters. The first one, mailed at the Croydon postoffice March 4, directed Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh to meet Christ at a railroad bridge there at 8 p. m. on March 6 and to have $50,000 ransom money. The writer threatened the Lindberghs if they failed to comply.

Police said today's letter was similar to the first. It was detected by Postmaster John Hewitt, of Croydon, who recognized the similarity in handwriting.

EASTMAN ENDS OWN LIFE

FRIEND OF EDISON

Eastman's death occurred a few months after his personal friend, Thomas Alva Edison, with whom he contributed largely toward the development of the modern motion picture. Edison devised the machine that first reproduced motion visually, but in it he used film produced by Eastman after years of experimenting.

The purchase memorandum for the first strip of this film was kept by the Rochester inventor in his personal files and is dated September 2, 1889. Each year since that time the Eastman factories have turned out hundreds of thousands of feet of motion picture film.

Alert, wiry and full of mental vigor until almost the very end, Eastman had an insatiable curiosity about life. Science, invention and philosophy intrigued him, and he was wont to have persons about him who could discuss all three. Music he enjoyed as regularly as his meals. Describing himself as "a musical moron," he nevertheless spent millions for music for himself and others.

COOKED OWN PIES

The home where he passed his last days is a large and pleasant one, with spacious halls, delightful vistas, high ceiling and old-fashioned stairways. There is a den full of firearms and trophies of his hunting trips to Africa, Canada and Alaska. On the top floor are the inventor's private laboratory and a private kitchen where he liked to try his hand at cooking. Lemon meringue pie and chocolate cake were his specialties.

Even as old age crept over him, Eastman broke a promise he made to himself seven years ago and continued to work hard. Until recent months he went to his office adjoining the Eastman plant, overlooking Lake Ontario, almost daily, at 9 or 10 a. m., and remained until nightfall.

RUSSIAN PLANES DOWN JAP AIRMAN

Siberian Border Situation Reported Tense; Tokio Recalls Shanghai Troops

LONDON, March 14.—(AP.)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, today said a Japanese airplane was reported to have crossed the Siberian border at Pogranichnaya, where it was surrounded in the air by Soviet Russian planes which pursued the Japanese ship and forced it down.

The dispatch also said that in a riot at Manchuli, on the Siberian border, a number of Japanese stores were looted and a Japanese merchant was killed.

A division of the Japanese army in Manchuria was ordered to the frontier to restore order in what was regarded as a serious situation.

Observers thought, the dispatch said, that this approach by Japanese troops to a point so close to the border as Manchuli might be particularly dangerous in view of the recent mobilization of Soviet troops on the border.

TROOPS RECALLED

TOKIO, March 14.—(INS.)—Withdrawal of the Japanese expeditionary forces from Shanghai by gradual stages was ordered by the government today.

The 11th Division and a majority of troops with the 24th mixed brigade were instructed to return at once.

CHANGCHUN, March 14.—(INS.)—The new Manchurian government of Henry Pu-Yi served notice today it is ready to go to war with China if necessary to protect its territories.

Steps were also taken to bring Jehol and other regions claimed by both governments under Manchurian control.

Outbreaks against the Manchurian regime, however, are reported both at Manchouli and Heiho, Soviet border towns. At both places Chinese rebels attacked Japanese civilians because Japan is supporting the Changchun government and several Japanese were killed.

COMMISSION ARRIVES

SHANGHAI, March 14.—(INS.)—The commission, appointed by the League of Nations to inquire into the Sino-Japanese conflict in Shanghai, arrived here today.

Despite bitter cold, large crowds turned out to welcome the commission. The streets were decked with banners and posters.

OHIO KIDNAPING TRIAL OPENS

WARREN, O., March 14.—(AP.)—Life imprisonment for the kidnapers of 11-year-old James De Jute, Jr., was sought by the state today as it brought to trial the first of the alleged abductors.

The De Jute boy, son of a wealthy Niles (O.) contractor, was overpowered and stolen from near his home March 2, just a few hours after the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. He was found unharmed several days later, with two alleged captors, in a secret room of a bootleg liquor storehouse near Youngstown.

It was one of the men found with Jimmy, Dowell Hargraves, 31, of Youngstown, who was summoned to trial today. The other man, John Demarco, 30, also of Youngstown, will go to trial later.

AUDIT SCORES FUND METHODS

clares, or forms accounting for them, signed by the magistrate. Such a method, according to the report, should keep at a minimum the cancellation of tags, especially by any party other than the magistrate. Compromise settlements should be discontinued, it was declared, unless accompanied by a form showing reasons and signed by the magistrate.

The approximate recommendations of the auditors in reference to the handling of tags are contained in the codified traffic ordinance which Council has shelved several times in the last several years. In suggesting the discontinuance of the department of the collector of delinquent taxes and the merger of its activities with the city treasury, numerous minor irregularities in the delinquent tax office were alleged in the report.

Examination of the Treasurer's office showed a number of instances of improper handling of funds, the report declared. Over and duplicate collections on which refunds of $12,403 were due October 10, had not been reported to the Controller's office, according to the report. Advances on salaries on October 10 amounted to $3,000, it was said.

MANAGEMENT SCORED

The report scores the management of city property and declared that in 1930 and 1931 the records of the North Side market were poorly kept and the amount of delinquent rents during that period is still uncertain. The report suggested that the city paymaster's office be made responsible to the Treasurer and Controller jointly to establish a more effective control.

Political influence, the report said, should be banished completely from the Treasurer's office inasmuch as the department is such an important part of city government.

'DANGEROUS PROCEDURE'

The report brands as a "dangerous procedure" the practice of the City Treasurer in signing his name to blank checks. It was done for former Treasurer Roy D. Schooley and is being done by the present Treasurer, R. W. Thompson, the report said.

It was also declared that both the City Treasurer and the Controller sign checks drawing money from the sinking fund without the name of any member of the Sinking Fund Commission being on the check. It was suggested that both the Treasurer and the Controller be made members of the commission.

Clerks in the Treasurer's office, the report said, start to balance their books and registers between 3:30 o'clock and 4 o'clock. Daily funds are taken in until 4 o'clock and might be manipulated and shortages concealed, it was said.

Lack of adequate records of cancelled checks, pass books and bank books in the Treasurer's vaults was deplored, as was the fact that there was no supervision of incoming mail which might contain money. The recommendation was also made that cash be taken for licenses instead of uncertified checks.

Commons Cheers MacDonald's Return

LONDON, March 14.—(AP.)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, who has not been in the House of Commons for several weeks because of an operation on his eye, and a subsequent period of recuperation, came back today and received a rousing cheer from all parties in the House.

STEEL HEADS SEE GAIN

NEW YORK, March 14.—(INS.)—The annual statement of the United States Steel Corporation, released to stockholders today, indicates quite clearly the expectation of the company that business for 1932 will exceed that for the past year on the basis of replacement demand, even if no new business is received.

The report, signed jointly by James A. Farrell, president, and J. P. Morgan, chairman of the board of directors, declares:

"It seems reasonable to suppose that on the basis of average demands in the United States for steel products during the past 10 years, the requirements of this country for maintenance and current uses alone, exclusive of development and expansion, should call for steel products in considerably greater tonnage than was consumed in 1931.

"To meet these demands at an economical cost of production and distribution, the properties of the organization are admirably equipped, organized and located."

Despite the payment of $62,203,626 in common and preferred dividends, of which $49,165,485 was deducted from surplus, the United States Steel Corporation finished the year 1931 with total cash, including sundry marketable securities, time and special deposits, and cash in hand and in banks of $150,806,329.

59 Cold Loiterers In Postoffice Freed

Only three of 62 men arrested yesterday for loitering in the postoffice were fined by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. They testified they were put out of the Helping Hand early until the place could be cleaned. It was too cold to walk the streets, the men testified. They were victims of the unemployment situation, the Magistrate declared following the wholesale discharge. Those fined were his "regular customers," Rothenberg said.

BEAUTY FACING 30-DAY TERM PLANS DEATH

Mary Nolan, Former Follies Girl, Threatens Suicide; Tells of Tragic Romance

By RUSSELL BIRDWELL
Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, March 14.—Mary Nolan, the former Imogene Wilson of the Follies, played her greatest role Sunday: played it to an audience of two persons—a lawyer and a newspaper reporter.

In this one-woman drama she tore open ruthlessly the closed chapters of the past.

Discussing the 30-day jail term imposed upon her by Municipal Judge Clement D. Dye as the aftermath of a number of wage claims against the actress and her husband, Wallace T. Macrery, she said:

"You may see my body on a slab in the County Morgue, but you'll never see me in jail.

"I'll kill myself before going to jail for a debt I did not incur and a debt that has already been paid.

"I'm on bond now while the case is being appealed, but if it is decided against me, I'll ask a stay of 24 hours.

ERRAND BEFORE DEATH

"There is something very important I will want to do during that period of time . . . after that I would kill myself.

"Life wouldn't be worth the living again after looking out at it through the bars of a cell."

Her mother died when she was 3. Mary said:

"I like to think I can remember her, but I was so little."

She was then placed in the St. Joseph's Convent in St. Joseph, Mo.

"When I was 13 I was called to Louisville. My sister was dying. I never went back to the convent. I went to New York."

There she became an artists' model and posed for Harrison Fisher, James Montgomery Flagg and others.

At 14 life made her a woman.

"I think I was looking for friendship . . . for love. I had never had any."

TINNEY ROMANCE

Mary joined the chorus of the Follies at 14.

"It was then I met and fell in love with Frank Tinney, a comedian and a genius.

"I can't explain it all . . . no one would understand or care. I just loved him."

It was this romance, in 1924, which sent the famed Tinney to oblivion, Imogene Wilson to Germany to emerge as Mary Nolan and Mrs. Tinney into the divorce courts.

Miss Nolan was asked:

"Where is Tinney now?"

She answered:

"He's partially paralyzed and that great voice with which he used to thrill so many thousands at the Follies is dimmed to almost a whisper.

"He's living with his father on the outskirts of Philadelphia. I dropped by to see him not long ago.

"I found him in a nearby park refereeing a marble game for a bunch of little boys. I stood and watched him . . . bent and paralyzed."

From Germany Imogene Wilson came back to America as Mary Nolan, a girl who had lived down the past and had achieved film stardom in the European capitals.

PLEADS FOR LAST CHANCE

A few months ago, the actress said, she filed a petition in bankruptcy in New York hoping for a new start.

Here in Hollywood she repeated her screen success only to find misfortune and trouble still dogging her steps. She said:

"I have done wrong to no one . . . only myself, it seems. They say I didn't pay some bills. Now they want to send me to jail. People owe me money but I'm not going to send them to jail. We're all having a hard time these days."

The actress then showed the writer two checks from an independent motion picture company given her in payment of work, but these had been returned from the bank. She said:

"All I ask is one more chance to make good in the profession I love so much.

"Why can't I have this one more chance—please?"

Skating was scheduled at various city and county parks today, provided the weather continued cold. At the South County Park, there will be both skating and tobogganing. At Highland Park the city announced there would be skating, but none in Schenley Park.

Two Teams Run Wild, Peril Autos in Shadyside

Two runaway teams imperiled motorists in the Shadyside district early today when the frightened horses ran wildly through traffic lights for several blocks before coming to a stop.

A team driven by Elmer Handte, 32, of 963 Chianti street, ran wild after the wagon was struck by an automobile in Fifth avenue, near Bigelow boulevard. The driver was injured.

The wild dash of the horses frightened a team of another milk wagon at Center and Aiken avenues while the driver was delivering. The second team ran down Aiken to Fifth avenue, then to Morewood avenue and down Morewood avenue to Bigelow boulevard before stopping. Police from an Oakland radio car found the horses exhausted.

The driver of the car that struck Handte's wagon, giving his name as George McGilvary, of Webster Hall, was lodged in Oakland Police Station on a reckless driving charge, according to police.

Handte's horses stopped after meeting the other wagon.

Powers Turns to Religion, Promises New Statement

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., March 14.—(AP.)—As the day of his doom nears, Harry F. Powers, mass slayer, has turned to religion for solace.

The corpulent Lothario who wooed women all over the United States by mail, will die on the gallows in West Virginia Penitentiary Friday at 9 p. m.

He was convicted specifically of the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Northboro, Mass., divorcee in his Quiet Dell garage near Clarksburg, but he also slew Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children, of Park Ridge, Ill. The bodies of all five were found buried in shallow graves near the garage.

Powers passed the Sabbath reading newspapers and chatting with guards. It was his first day in the death house, only a few steps from the gallows.

He also received religious ministrations from the Rev. E. M. Giesey, Protestant chaplain of the prison.

Powers says he will have another "short statement" sometime this week. He issued a 1,500-word statement Saturday.

KREUGER SUICIDE UNSETTLES TRADING IN WORLD MARKETS

STOCKS DROP IN U. S. AND EUROPE

Sweden Grants Moratorium On All Debts Owed by Financier's Companies

International News Service.

The suicide of Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, unsettled trading on the world's exchanges today.

Kreuger shares were sharply off on all markets. The Swedish bourse, however, was quiet, speculators refraining from trading pending a thorough survey of the situation brought about by his sudden death.

On the New York Stock Exchange, Kreuger and Toll common opened at 1⅞, off 3⅛, on a block of 150,000 shares, and closed at the end of a day of tremendous activity in the shares at 2⅛. International Match Company shares fell off 6 points to 11½, but closed at 12⅝, while Kreuger and Toll 5 per cent bonds were 12½ points lower at 36. Virtually all leading issues reflected the downward trend.

SLUMP IN EUROPE

British funds, continental securities and Anglo-American shares dropped sharply on the London exchange. Kreuger shares were barred from trading on the Paris bourse when offers showed a 100-franc drop in values at the opening. Swedish match shares fell from 625 to 340 francs on the Brussels exchange.

Kreuger & Toll shares were not traded in on the Berlin Boerse.

A director of the Bank for International Settlements, which held its regular monthly meeting today at Basle, Switzerland, foresaw the possibility of partial collapse of long-term credits in Germany, Rumania and Poland as a result of the suicide.

Sweden Gives Moratorium To Kreuger Companies

STOCKHOLM, March 14.—A moratorium on all debts owed by the companies of Ivar Kreuger, his estates and heirs, was granted by the government this morning, only two hours after a bill making this action possible had been rushed through both houses of Parliament.

The moratorium extends until the end of March, at which time it will be renewable at the government's discretion. The government is not expected to grant a moratorium to any business interests not connected with the self-killed match magnate and financier, although the bill authorized such relief for "other concerns, if and when necessary."

FIREMEN PULLING AN OVERCOME FIREMAN FROM THE SMOKE

MANY PERILED IN HOMESTEAD CHURCH FIRE

Flaming Steeples Crash as $800,000 Blaze Destroys Edifice; 10 Men Injured

Homestead police and firemen today were searching ruins to determine the cause of the fire that yesterday destroyed St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Tenth avenue and Amity street, in a 10-hour battle in which 10 injured firemen were removed to Homestead Hospital and to which 13 fire companies from Homestead, Pittsburgh and surrounding boroughs were called. The loss was estimated at $800,000.

Upper Homestead was thrown into darkness and thousands of spectators were imperiled as the twin 175-foot steeples crashed to the ground amid showers of flame.

EIGHT IN HOSPITAL

Eight of the injured firemen were admitted to the hospital. They were Michael Pyers, 42, of 603 Amity street, overcome by smoke; John Kohler, 29, of Greensprings avenue, Homeville, overcome by smoke; Martin King, 48, of 1312 Martha street, Munhall, abdominal injuries; Harry Kline, 24, of Franklin street, Munhall, overcome by smoke; Timothy Doyle, 23, of 613 Seventeenth avenue, Munhall, overcome by smoke; Fire Chief Herman Samuels, 37, of 435 Fifth avenue, Homestead, injured back; Lester Race, 22, of 141 Chalfant street, Whitaker, chest injuries, and Officer Roland Calvin, 39, of 248 Eighth avenue, Homestead, overcome by smoke. Others attended and released were Andrew Doyle, 20, of 613 Seventeenth street, Munhall, burns of hands and face, and Police Lieut. Lawrence J. Albiez, 35, of 211 East Fifth avenue, overcome by smoke.

PRIEST GIVES ALARM

The fire started in the rear basement of the church near the furnace and was discovered by the Rev. David Shanahan, pastor, when he returned to the church shortly after noon.

He summoned Homestead firemen, but they found the blaze so stubborn that they called five companies from Munhall, one from Rankin, four from Pittsburgh and one from West Homestead.

Firemen were hampered by dense smoke and ice that formed on the ladders and on the streets as the water fell from the burning structure.

As the steeples, masses of flames, crashed to the ground, thousands of spectators scrambled to safety and were forced behind fire lines maintained by Homestead and Pittsburgh police.

CRASH BREAKS WIRES

Falling steeples snapped electric wires and plunged the streets into darkness. Emergency crews from the Pittsburgh Railways Company were summoned when broken trolley wires fell to the streets and imperiled firemen.

As efforts to save the large church, with seats for about 1,000 persons, failed, firemen turned their attention to the rectory while volunteers carried out furnishings and personal effects from the building.

A group of Salvation Army workers, under Capt. George McLaughlin, furnished sandwiches and coffee for firemen who suffered from the cold.

This was the third church which St. Mary Magdalene's parish has lost by fire. The present structure was built in the pastorate of the Rev. John J. Bullion in 1895. Father Bullion was succeeded in the pastorate in 1916 by the Rev. Hugh C. Boyle. The latter was pastor of the church until 1921, when he became bishop of the diocese.

Fire early yesterday destroyed five residences and damaged two garages on Gold way, near Dixon street, Homestead. "Buts" Farley, Homestead fireman, was overcome by smoke and was removed to Homestead Hospital. Firemen said the blaze had started from an overheated stove in one of the houses.

Church Burned, Hold Funeral in School

Funeral services for John J. Nealon, 42, of 336 East Twelfth avenue, Homestead, were held in St. Mary's School, Homestead, today. An altar was erected in the school auditorium and a priest said mass from the platform where sisters usually talk to their classes.

Fire which destroyed St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Tenth avenue and Amity street, yesterday was the cause of the conversion of the schoolroom into a church.

Until the church is rebuilt, mass will be said regularly in the school auditorium.

Nealon was killed early Friday when his auto collided with a Pittsburgh-McKeesport street car in the River road near Munhall.

MEET M'GOVERN IN HOSPITAL

County Commissioners' meetings may be held in the Sewickley Valley Hospital until Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, confined there with a broken ankle, recovers.

Tomorrow's meeting will be held in the usual Courthouse rooms, but Commissioners C. M. Barr and W. D. Mansfield said they would hold future meetings in the hospital if McGovern desired.

Dr. John D. Singley said McGovern will not leave the hospital for several weeks, and that it will take six months of extreme care to prevent a permanent deformity of the injured ankle and foot.

Girl Born To Wife Of James Roosevelt

BOSTON, March 14.—(Universal.)—Mrs. James Roosevelt became the mother yesterday of an eight pound girl, who is to be christened Sarah Delano Roosevelt for her maternal great-grandmother.

2 BUSINESS MEN TURN ROBBERS

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—(INS.)—Two Philadelphia business men, today confessed they cracked four safes in quest of money to feed their destitute families, after their business ventures failed.

The two men are Warren McClintock, 30, a plumber, and Richard Schoenburg, 50, a real estate broker.

The two admitted robbing safes in four stores, police said. Their most profitable robbery netted them $30. Police traced the robberies through a cuff button dropped by McClintock. Schoenburg said:

"I had to do it so my family could eat. I'm guilty. You've got me. There's nothing else for me to say."

He told police his real estate losses in the last three years amounted to $50,000. McClintoch was quoted as saying:

"I was down to bedrock. I lost everything. I had no money for food for myself, my wife and my daughter. We even lost our home."

Julius Gardner, of Brownsville road, a French horn player, is asking compensation for injuries which he claims to have suffered while a member of the theater orchestra when, he asserts, the stalwart Broudy deserted his baton and punched him in the mouth.

Gardner claims his vision was impaired and that his lips, bruised by the blow, no longer bring the proper tones from his horn.

MELLON BACK IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP.)—Refreshed after a fortnight's rest in Georgia, Andrew W. Mellon will spend the next few days here before going to Pittsburgh and leaving shortly for his post as Ambassador to Great Britain.

The former Secretary of the Treasury will remain in the Capital through Wednesday, attending to personal business, conferring with President Hoover and making other preparations for his new duties. He expects to spend several days in Pittsburgh.

The new envoy to the Court of St. James will take a minimum of his effects to London, where the completely furnished embassy residence will be in readiness for him. He probably will continue to maintain his apartment here.

Divorced Wife Aids Other 2 In Bigamy Prosecution

Mrs. Mabel Keyser Aiken, of 6643 Deary street, was in Cleveland today, called there to aid police in constructing a bigamy case against the husband she divorced last January.

Cleveland authorities claim that William D. Aiken, 28, was, until his divorce from the Pittsburgh woman, married to no less than three women at the same time.

Mrs. Margaret Maloney Aiken, 23, of Cleveland, is listed as wife No. 2. She said she married Aiken January 31, 1931.

Wife No. 3, police said, is Mrs. Marie McConnell Aiken, with whom he was living in a Cleveland apartment house when arrested last night. A marriage license purports that she married him in Erie, October 28, 1931.

Aiken's arrest was caused by wife No. 2, who went to wife No. 3 and told her that the man she called her husband was a bigamist.

Wife No. 3 refused to believe wife No. 2, so wife No. 2 called wife No. 1 from Pittsburgh to substantiate her charge.

Wife No. 1, the mother of two children, Richard, 6, and George, 5, was granted her divorce on charges of desertion.

Wife No. 1 said:

"He liked brunettes with big, brown eyes."

Wives No. 2 and No. 3 chorused:

"We couldn't let him ruin the lives of any more girls."

four million dollars. And buyers of bonds on that hotel lost more than thirteen million dollars.

Securities that will certainly be worth par are selling below twenty because dollar holders are frightened out of their wits, even out of their cupidity.

The country needs more money, easier credit, and government should supply it. We had no difficulty finding ten thousand million dollars to lend Europe, money that won't come back, or finding tens of billions for other asinine loans after the war. We found endless billions to ship three million Americans across the ocean from their homes.

We should be able to provide more money now, for OUR OWN USE.

IT HAS LONG been believed that George Washington wrote a poem beginning:

"Assist me, muse divine! To sing the morn,
On which the saviour of mankind was born."

The poem, religious throughout, ended with the line,

"When time and sin, and death shall be no more!"

Washington did not write the verses, he only copied them in a book. But he wrote some plain prose, worth, to this nation, any ten of the world's greatest poems, when he advised his successors in office and the American people to keep out of foreign entanglements, and attend to their own business.

THE KILLING of one, or half a dozen gangsters, by others of their tribe, attracts little attention, now that we have settled down to government by gangs.

But each time, you are impressed by the THOROUGHNESS that accompanies the killing. It seems to reflect deep hatred and doubtless does.

Last Saturday morning, Mrs. Joseph Curecino found her husband dead in his garage. He owned a fleet of taxicabs, was prosperous. Police said he was a bootlegger and hi-jacker. The hi-jacker is one that robs bootleggers, taking away their liquor, as the baldheaded eagle is said to rob other birds of their prey, after they have taken the trouble to catch it.

Curecino had been slugged, to make him unconscious, kicked, stabbed thirteen times and shot through the brain twice.

IN GREATER New York, alone, ninety-six doctors are arrested for selling whisky prescriptions, signed in blank. An energetic young man had found a way to "make money, even in dull times." He bought from doctors entire books of prescriptions, all signed in blank, sold them to drug stores to be filled in according to the name and taste of the customer.

On one day, presently, one hundred and fifty-one physicians will appear in court together and prosecuting attorneys say others are to follow. Rigid enforcement of prohibition is difficult.

CZECHS ADMIT TROTZKY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 14.—(AP.)—Leon Trotzky, the exiled Bolshevist war lord, has been granted permission to spend three months in Czechoslovakia for his health. He will leave here within two weeks.

It will be the first time he has been allowed to leave Turkey during his three years of exile, and even now the Czech government has demanded, and the Turkish government will require, that Mrs. Trotzky, also in frail health, must remain here as a hostage to guarantee his return at the end of three months.

Trotzky has no passport since he no longer holds his Russian citizenship, but will travel with Turkish secret service men on a special visa as far as the frontier. When he comes back he must have the visa of the Turkish consul in Czechoslovakia.

Cardinal Dougherty Honored by Pope

VATICAN CITY, March 14.—(AP.)—Pope Pius XI today nominated Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, to be protector of the native congregation of Sisters of Visitation, which has a number of chapters in the United States. The mother house is in Tokio.

Hint of Old Pomp Returns To Mrs. Wood in Death

NEW YORK, March 14.—(INS.)—Some of the pomp Mrs. Ida E. Wood knew before she retired from her social pinnacle a quarter of a century ago accompanied her today in death.

She lay in a fine coffin of mahogany, oxidized against the reactions of the earth, and a blanket of callow lilies, intertwined with smilax and roses, under the altar of the Church of St. Francis of Assisi.

Before she retreated to the seclusion of a hotel room in the Herald Square, there to finger the yellow bills, a part of a million dollar cache she wouldn't trust to banks, and there to die at 93, Mrs. Wood often worshipped at St. Francis of Assisi.

So high mass of requiem was said for her there today, with the Rev. Samuel Gregor, who administered the last rites of the church before she slipped away Saturday, as celebrant.

There were mourners for her, too, unlike the lonesome service for her spinster sister, Mary E. Mayfield, who was taken out of the Herald Square under cover of darkness when she died a year ago.

Otis F. Wood, the nephew who was appointed guardian of her hidden wealth, led them in a car with Morgan J. O'Brien, the family attorney; Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood and Washington Fernando Wood. Henry Wood and his family were in another car. They are all one branch of the descendants.

Another limousine bore Mrs. Blanche Shields, Mrs. Gertrude Wood and Howard Wood. They opposed Otis Wood's appointment as guardian when the fortune was revealed last fall. None of them knew until then that Mrs. Wood was even alive.

But they united at the bier today. And, in days to come, the courts will be called upon to decide who will benefit from the hoarded fortune that Ida Wood loved so well.

Latrobe 'Taxi' Dancer Wed To Broker's Heir

LATROBE, Pa., March 14.—Romaine Fleming, paperhanger's daughter, who danced her way to local fame in school theatricals is today the wife of Allan P. Carlisle, 20, Harvard student and son of Jay F. Carlisle, New York broker.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander W. Fleming, 328 Walnut street, it was stated that Romaine, after completion of her high school course about three years ago, took an advanced course in dancing in Pittsburgh, and with her sister, Hazel, went to New York, where they obtained theatrical engagements.

Word from New York said that young Carlisle met Miss Romaine while she was working as a dime-a-dance girl. They were married last December 23, while Carlisle was home from college. Reports from New York said the Carlisle family was making efforts to have the marriage annulled.

According to the Fleming family, detectives have been in Latrobe investigating the girl's past and that of her family. The Flemings have lived here for many years. There are now four married daughters, with three single children at home.

DRYS IN HOUSE DEFEAT MOVE FOR VOTE

Plan to Submit Prohibition To States for Referendum Loses by 227 to 187

is remarkable. It shows the trend of the times is to go back to a sane system.

"With 500,000 convictions under prohibition and the crowded jails, the immorality of the country, racketeering and gangster rule, it is time sensible people were taking charge."

Linthicum pointed out there were only 65 anti-drys listed in the House last year as against 128 in 1917 before the question got so controversial. He added:

"The best vote we got last year was 90 on poison liquor and many of those were not wet."

Speaker Garner did not vote in accordance with procedure whereby the Speaker refrains from casting a ballot.

JUBILANT DRYS CHEER

The vote, which came after but 20 minutes of debate, was made possible under the "anti-gag" rules of the House which permitted 145 members to bring to a vote the question of whether the resolution would be considered.

A tense House listened to the roll call in the first test on prohibition since the amendment was adopted 12 years ago. Jubilant drys let loose cheers and applause as the vote was announced.

The vote carried with it the political fortunes of many members who have been "on the fence" on the prohibition question. Both anti-dry and dry organizations have served notice that their attitude in the next campaign will be based upon the vote of members today.

Nevertheless, some dry members supported the movement on the ground that the people have the right to vote on the prohibition question.

PROVISIONS LISTED

The Beck-Linthicum resolution drafted by the combined Republican and Democratic anti-drys of the House, provided:

Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment through a revised amendment to be submitted to state constitutional conventions.

States to decide whether or not they will have liquor, with shipment of liquor into dry territory forbidden.

A referendum by requiring that the revised amendment be considered in state constitutional conventions, to which delegates would be elected on this issue.

The size of the vote—414 out of a total membership of 433—was something of a surprise. There are 435 members of the House, but there are two vacancies, one in the Twenty-ninth Pennsylvania District and in the Seventh Mississippi.

After some parliamentary skirmishing relating to division of time, Linthicum took the floor as the anti-drys arose and applauded. He asserted:

"The crucial time in the long fight for the liberty and liberation of the American people has arrived. Not in the 12 years—the life of the Eighteenth Amendment—have we had an opportunity to vote directly upon it.

"Scripture tells us 'Who is not with us is against us,' so I tell you that he who votes against the discharge of this committee today is not willing to submit the question to the people.

OPPOSES SALOON

"My construction is that the drys in this House can vote for this discharge and subsequently vote for the resolution without injury to themselves because it is a mere submission to the will of the electorate."

Representative Bachman (Rep.), of West Virginia, interrupted Linthicum to ask if the Marylander would oppose the return of the saloon. Linthicum declared himself as unalterably opposed to any move to bring back the saloon.

Cheers and applause greeted the close of Linthicum's address and the recognition of Representative Moore (Rep.), of Ohio. Moore was booed when he attempted to turn the Marylander's admission against him.

Moore said the passage of the resolution would bring unprecedented chaos in the country, as some states would legislate for themselves and the federal government for others.

SHOUTS MARK DEBATE

Following Moore's short address the minority leader, Snell of New York, announced the opponents of the measure required no further time. Representative O'Connor (Dem.), of New York, said:

"It is amusing to see the about face of the prohibition forces on the interpretation of this vote today. They vehemently and threateningly oppose any submission of this question to the states or the people. Yet in 1917 they argued that the vote to submit the Eighteenth Amendment was not a personal vote of members of Congress, but rather a compliance with their sworn duty to submit to the people any question of constitutional amendment when any considerable number of our people demanded an opportunity to pass on the proposal."

Representative Sumners (Dem.), of Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, declared the issue should not have been brought to the floor of the House because of economic conditions.

He questioned if the House or the Senate would give a two-thirds vote in favor of the resolution, and asked:

"Does anyone believe three-fourths of the states will ratify any changes in the amendment?"

SHOUTS GREET REMARK

Shouts from all corners of the chamber resounded:

"Yes! Yes!"

Representative Laguardia (Rep.), of New York, was given a half minute by those favoring the resolution. He said:

"The people of the United States have a right to be heard on this vital question."

APPEAL OF BECK

Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania, co-author of the resolution, said:

"The question is a very simple one. It does not involve the merits or demerits of the Eighteenth Amendment, but only the right of the American people, if they so desire, to determine their own destinies.

"Those who oppose such resubmission must do so on the theory that this provision of the Constitution is a finality for all time. Those who favor such resubmission, believe that the American people have an inviolable and ever continuing right to determine from generation to generation the nature of their government and the character of their laws. If they have not such right then democracy is a fraud and a delusion.

"It is strange indeed that prohibitionists should now claim infallibility for the Eighteenth Amendment, for clearly they did not regard the Constitution as unchangeable when they added the Eighteenth Amendment and thus destroyed that basic principle of the Constitution, local self-government. If their inconsistency in this respect proves nothing, yet I can invoke the elementary principles of our government and the noblest of American traditions to prove that the American people have regarded as the fundamental verity of liberty the right to change their form of government.

"How then can it be contended that the American people have not the right to determine whether any part of their Constitution and especially an amendment should be either repealed or modified? To assert otherwise is to challenge democracy itself."

It's a homely, old-fashioned remedy, and doctors still agree that it is scientific, up-to-date, and much safer than internal dosing.

As soon as you feel a cold coming on, put four heaping tablespoonfuls of Colman's Mustard in a cup of cold water and blend into a paste. Pour this into a tub of hot water, mixing well. Then hop in. What gentle warmth, what relaxation! No burning . . . just a cozy, wrapped-in-wool sensation. And then, what untroubled sleep!

When your children have cold symptoms, give them a mustard tub or foot bath. They benefit from them just as much as adults do.

Be sure you get Colman's, because it is absolutely pure, and richer in medicinal properties. At all druggists and grocers.

HINDENBURG'S MARGIN BIG

predicted for him, and the final result was a distinct triumph for the field marshal and moderate Germany. Observers said it meant that monarchism is dead forever.

One of the surprising features of the election was the failure of the Communists to muster more votes. Hitler's headquarters, combining this with Hindenburg's great total, charged that the Reds had ordered their younger groups to vote for Hindenburg.

HINDENBURG PLEASED

President Von Hindenburg sat up until 11 p. m. last night to hear over the radio the results of the election—long enough to know he had a safe lead over Adolf Hitler—but did not learn until today how great a victory he had scored.

He expressed great satisfaction over the outcome, and assured his supporters he was willing to run on a second ballot. Prior to the election there had been rumors that the aged statesman would decline to run a second time if not given a clear majority in the first vote.

HITLERITES SEE VICTORY

MUNICH, March 14.—(INS.)—"Hitler will be president. Of this there is no doubt. The fight goes on."

Thus the Nazi headquarters today launched the new fight to elect their leader, Adolf Hitler, president on the necessary second ballot. Leaders declared:

"The Steel Helmet organization (who backed Duesterberg yesterday) will merge with the Nazis on the next ballot. Besides, we shall win over enough Von Hindenburg supporters to win this time, when Hitler will get 16,300,000 votes.

"Von Hindenburg would have had at least 3,000,000 votes fewer than he obtained if the Communists had not passed out the word that the younger membership should work for him. We are quite satisfied with the results."

LONG FOE LOSES OUSTER SUIT

LAKE CHARLES, La., March 14.—(AP.)—District Judge Porter today dismissed the ouster suit which Dr. Paul N. Cyr, elected Lieutenant Governor of Louisiana, filed here several weeks ago against Alvin O. King, Governor de facto, in which Cyr sought to have himself declared Governor to succeed Huey P. Long.

Judge Porter upheld exceptions filed by King asking that the litigation be dropped for lack of the court's jurisdiction. King claimed only the Legislature is empowered to remove a Governor.

The suit was similar to one filed by Cyr against Long before the latter took his seat in the United States Senate. That suit was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction by the State Supreme Court on appeal from the lower court at Shreveport.

DRAMA CRITIC ROW ENDED

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(INS.)—The battle of Representative William I. Sirovich (Dem.), of New York, with the nation's dramatic critics today ended in a love feast, much to the disappointment of the audience which assembled in the House Patents Committee room for a free show today.

When the smoke cleared Sirovich exonerated the "good dramatic critics" and a New York critic—Robert Coleman, of the Mirror—exonerated Sirovich.

And the hearings were closed after one member, Representative Cole (Dem.), of Maryland, suggested that Congress didn't have any business quarreling with dramatic critics.

Morticians Open District Meeting

Discussion of the national program for newspaper advertising will be among subjects considered by the National Selected Morticians, Group Three, which opened its sessions today in the William Penn Hotel. WOMAN KILLED AT CARD PARTY

COATESVILLE, Pa., March 14.—(AP.)—In the effort to learn the cause of a double killing during a card party, police today were searching for the husband of Mrs. Evelyn Albright, 24, shot to death by Roy Kurtz, 27, before he put a bullet throug his own heart.

The two were playing cards, when Mrs. Albright went to the kitchen ostensibly for a drink of water. Kurtz followed her, and two shots were heard. They were found dead of bullet wounds through their hearts. In Kurtz's hand was a pistol.

Charles Albright, the woman's husband, was not at the party. No explanation for the act was obtained from Mrs. Celia Roberts, the hostess, the guests or police.

The Albrights lived at the home of Mrs. Samuel Boyd, mother of Mrs. Albright, where Kurtz was a boarder.

"It's nothing serious; she was only exhausted."

TEACHERS' PAY CUTS VALID

While warning school boards it is impossible legally to reduce salaries of teachers of standard certification below the minimum set by the Edmonds act, Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction, today sanctioned "voluntary" contributions by teachers to relieve financial stress of school boards.

This action clears up the uncertainty surrounding the rebates offered some weeks ago by teachers of North Versailles and Homestead school districts. Dr. Rule said:

"Teachers may make voluntary contributions just as any other citizen might make to the school or welfare funds of a municipal unit to help maintain educational and welfare standards."

6 MONTHS TO PAY

THE BUDGET IDEA CREDITIZED:

Try 6 months to pay instead of 30 days. You'll not be obligated. A visit will be appreciated even if you don't open an account. Why stint yourself paying 30-day accounts when you can budget your wearing-apparel purchases same as you do your radio, electric refrigerator, automobile and other progressive needs which contribute to your social and home life.

84 SAVED FROM BEACHED SHIP

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 14.—(Universal)—All 84 passengers and the crew of the Canadian National Steamship liner Prince David will be landed at Hamilton today from the steamship Lady Somers which rescued them yesterday after the Prince David hit a reef in a blinding rainstorm 10 miles off here.

The Prince David was out of Boston for Bermuda. Early today the liner was reported breaking up on the reefs, pounded by a running sea and stiff northeast wind.

Most of the baggage and mail were transferred with the passengers and crew to the Lady Somers, which is a sister ship of the same line. All the passengers boarded the ship at Boston Friday night.

BOSTON, March 14.—(AP)—The crew of the Collier H. F. De Bardeleben came into Boston harbor aboard a tug yesterday, their seamed faces bearing the saga of three harried nights on a storm-whipped ocean.

The crew had stayed at their posts as their rudderless craft plunged on through the angry billows, shipping water and every minute threatening to roll under. They were saved barely in time by the British freighter Langanbank, and saw their own craft sink.

Auto Inspection Exemptions Given

Automobiles operated without approval stickers between April 1 and July 1 will be stopped by state highway patrolmen, but drivers will not be arrested if they can show that they were out of the state or did not have license plates during January, February and March, the Pittsburgh Motor Club has been informed by motor vehicle administrators at Harrisburg.

Walter W. Matthews, deputy commissioner of motor vehicles, said that these drivers will be given tags which call for official inspections within 72 hours. Failure to procure approval stickers within time will be considered just grounds for prosecution by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

N. Y. Museum Buys Rothschild Birds

NEW YORK, March 14—(AP)—The Rothschild collection of birds, numbering more than 200,000 specimens, has been purchased in part by the American Museum of Natural History and will be shipped to New York from Tring, England.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

We Should Appreciate Real Love When We Find It

Are you convinced that life is all haywire—that love is a delusion, and the human race a bunch of pikers?

Then tune in on Cora. She'll be good for what ails you.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I have read so often of the discontented, discouraged men and women and broken marriages, that I thought maybe for a change you and the gang would like to hear from one happy, contented husband and wife, who manage to be that way even under a series of distressing conditions.

"Ten years ago I met and fell in love with a handsome, successful young business man. In a year we were married. In another year and a half we had a beautiful boy baby.

"In trying to care for my baby and my home and neglect neither, I became ill. Later I had infantile paralysis and was in bed for months.

"All through my illness my husband's love and courage carried me, and finally cured me. He was faithful beyond words, attentive and kind, and never complained. We couldn't afford, really, to have help in the house all this time, but we did. He scrimped and sacrificed that I might have the best of care.

"Then the first time I was out I was taken ill again. It was months before the trouble was located, and after almost a year and a half I am still in bed a great deal of the time.

PRICELESS POSSESSIONS

"Sometimes I do get discouraged, but when I see my little boy, who is trusting me, and my husband, who is still working and sacrificing that we may have the best, it gives me new courage, and love that is so great that I know I will conquer in time and be well again.

"I know people—at least a lot of them—think that there is no such thing as real happiness, or a real 100 per cent marriage, these days. They are always talking gloom and telling the rest of us that a belief in things that are good and true is all hooey. They make me tired. I know better.

There is such a thing as a faithful, understanding husband. I know, because I have one, and I wouldn't trade him for all the riches in the world.

A husband like him and a husky little boy like our son are worth more than all the money in the world.

EXPECT TOO MUCH

Most couples demand so much when they start out together. They want everything on earth. They crab if they can't be having a 'good time' every minute. They each want their own way, and wouldn't think of giving an inch to the other.

That's why they fail to get along. They don't realize that if they have a good, true love, they will be happy, and eventually have everything that makes life really worth living.

I feel that my life has been full and overflowing with what makes it worth while, in spite of my illness, and I am thankful. I only hope that I will soon be well, so that I'll be able to work for my little family, as they have worked for me. What do you think?

CORA."

What do I think?

I think a letter like yours is medicine for any sore soul, my dear. It's a grand letter, and you're a grand girl.

There is beauty and truth and real love in this world—if we can forget ourselves and our own pouts and peeves long enough to look for it, and appreciate it when we find it.

Engagements Best When Announced with Early Marriage Dates—Fay King

THEY AREN'T MARRIED YET, HE HAS A RIGHT TO CHANGE HIS MIND
LET'S CALL OUR ENGAGEMENT OFF
WHAT WILL OUR FRIENDS THINK?
BETTER TO BREAK AN ENGAGEMENT THAN MAKE AN UNHAPPY MARRIAGE
FAY KING

By FAY KING

There are engagements and engagements.

An engagement is not a marriage and it seems to me both persons should have a right to break an engagement.

The best engagements are those announced at the time a date is set for the weddings in the near future.

Long engagements are too often made in the hope that they will not terminate in marriage. Parents often consent to a long engagement hoping it will be broken off in time to prevent a marriage they do not particularly approve.

An engaged person who keeps postponing the marriage is not really in love and such engagements are somewhat of a "racket."

A man should be privileged to break an engagement as a girl is permitted to change her mind.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Surprise for Madge Kept Secret by Family

The sense of being kept in ignorance of something which the family knew steadily increased during the last meal I had at home before going upon the oceanside weekend with Dick.

The two little boys were evidently tremendously excited over something, and the round-eyed glances they sent me from time to time betrayed the fact that the something concerned me. Three or four times, too, they struck into the conversation with questions which seemed wholly irrelevant and which were quickly flagged by the older boys who seemed to be laboring under the weight of the entire world, and whose frantic anxiety to keep the little boys from talking was far more potent to increase my suspicion that something was afoot, than the naive boasts of Junior and Roderick.

Carefully I pretended to pay no attention either to boasts or attempts to silence the little chaps. And as Lillian and Harry kept up a continual line of banter of each other and everybody else during the luncheon hour, Dicky and I reached the time of departure without my having betrayed my suspicion that something was being kept from me.

Usually Junior is quite tempestuous in his farewells to me, but this time I was almost piqued by the enthusiasm with which he and Roderick speeded our departure. It was an enthusiasm which was reflected more decorously in all the rest of the household. I was sure I did not imagine the anxiety to have us leave that appeared to be pervading the group which was bidding us goodbye.

We were in the car, and Dicky was just releasing the clutch, when an agitated voice hailed us, and turning, I saw Sam Ticer coming toward us with as much haste as our slow-moving neighbor ever permits himself.

"Mr. Graham! Mr. Graham!" he was calling. "Wait a minute! You didn't tell me how long you wanted them posts."

Dicky uttered an imprecation under his breath, but put his gear shift into neutral and turned around. He knew better than to offend our touchy neighbor by speeding away in the pretense that we had not heard him. Mr. Ticer is too prone to imagine an affront where none is intended, for any of us to present him with a real excuse for pique.

"Mr. Underwood knows everything about it," he said. "Ask him anything you want to know."

As he spoke, I saw Harry Underwood put his hand ingratiatingly upon Sam Ticer's arm and lead him away, still protesting, but safe. I knew in Mr. Underwood's capable hands.

Safe from what? The query caromed in my brain although I was sure that I had no cause for anything but amusement at the conspiracy to keep me from finding out something which evidently was shared not only by my own family but by the neighbors as well. But I was firmly determined not to betray the slightest curiosity. That it was some sort of a surprise which was being planned for me was plain. I had noticed the same suppressed excitement when I came home from the hospital before they had shown me the Egyptian lily pool which Dicky had had constructed as a surprise for me.

Some addition to my beloved flower garden probably. I thought comfortably and, dismissing the whole thing from my mind, gave myself up to the rest and pleasure of the outing which Dicky had planned for me.

There followed the most marvelous three days I had known since my honeymoon. The hotel was quiet, well appointed, and its cuisine justified its advertising. Dicky and I motored, rode horseback, and swam enough to afford us the outdoor exercise to which we are always accustomed. But mostly we rested gloriously [illegible] out in the shelter [illegible] dunes, reading and [illegible].

There never was a [illegible] lover than Dicky. [illegible] those three days [illegible] could not have [illegible] flattering, deferent[illegible], more courtly hom[illegible] lover-husband gav[illegible].

Not for years h[illegible] a sense of rest a[illegible]. My anxieties were lulled, my nerves soothed by the absolute freedom from all care and worry which was mine. Every morning before I left for the beach, and every night after dinner I telephoned to my small son and also talked to Roderick. For I had determined when Dicky's motherless little nephew came to us that he never should feel that Dicky or I made the slightest difference between himself and Junior.

Like all small boys, they were delighted with the importance of being called for a long-distance telephone message. But always I had the feeling that a grown-up was at the elbow of each boy. Once, indeed, Junior after answering my inquiries as to himself and Faith gurgled excitedly:

"Oh Moms, you ought to see," but whatever he said was cut short abruptly by something—I guessed a hand put suddenly over his mouth, for a few seconds later he asked in the subdued tone of one who has been coached in a question:

"When are you coming home?"

Then, excitement trampling over caution, he exclaimed:

"Gee, Moms, if you don't come pretty soon, me and Rod are going to bust."

Household Hints -:-

Vegetables that have become stale or frostbitten can be freshened by soaking for two or three hours before cooking in very cold water to which a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda has been added.

Make your own bandages at home by tearing an old clean sheet into strips and rolling them. They can be sterilized by placing in a jar that is suspended in water and allowed to become boiling hot.

The most important thing to remember to make linoleum last longer is to always wipe it dry after cleaning and prevent water from getting into the seams and underneath the linoleum.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Children Often Victims of Serious Kidney Disorders

In the mind of the layman kidney disease is an ailment confined to the aged and to persons in middle life, yet children and even babies may suffer from Bright's disease.

Dr. Copeland

Many times the kidney becomes involved during the course of one of the infectious diseases, notably scarlet fever and diphtheria; while measles, chicken pox and even a severe diarrhoea may be accompanied by kidney complications. The poison of the original disease is responsible for the involvement of the kidney.

Scarlet fever is particularly liable to be accompanied or followed by kidney trouble. This may happen even after very mild attacks of fever, usually at the time the peeling begins. The child's temperature rises and the urine becomes scanty and of high color. There may also be puffiness about the face or, in severe cases, swelling of the ankles, headache or even convulsions.

These symptoms, although alarming, commonly disappear under suitable treatment; but the acute attacks may be followed by chronic Bright's disease if careful attention is not paid to building up the general health.

During any of the contagious diseases the bowels must be kept active by drinking sufficient water. The skin must be carefully protected from chilling, and light woolen or silk and wool underwear is advisable. The diet particularly during and after scarlet fever should be liquid and unirritating, consisting largely of milk.

If the kidney disease becomes chronic, there may be no symptom discernable to the parents excepting the anemia and loss of strength; but on examination of the urine, the cause of the failure in health is quickly discovered.

The treatment consists largely of a strict regulation of diet and avoidance of fatigue. Tonics may be ordered by the physician. When possible, outdoor life in a warm, dry climate is advisable.

The entrance of germs into the kidney is not uncommon in children. This may be the case in youngsters under 2 years of age. The most frequent cause of the disease is infection through the colon bacillus, which is an inhabitant of the intestines. Lack of cleanliness may permit the germ to enter the bladder and find their way upward to the kidney. It is very necessary to take great care as to cleanliness, especially in the case of diarrhoea.

A baby having a fever without apparent cause needs the care of the doctor. The mother should see him. He will make an analysis of the urine, and this may reveal the cause of failing health.

The treatment must be prescribed by a physician. The usual precautions of an unirritating diet, avoiding chilling of the body, and maintaining normal action of the bowels, are necessary in all cases.

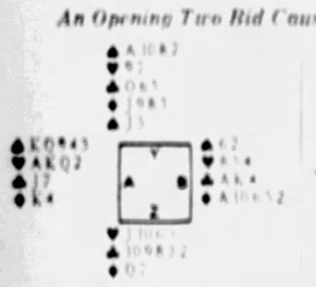
Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted By Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

An Opening Two Bid Causes the Best Final Make.



Z passed. Although A's hand counted a skimpy seven probable tricks, the fact that he was so strong in both major suits caused him to bid 2-Spades. This proved to be the one declaration that ultimately produced the sole game going contract for the hand. Neither Y nor Z attempted to bid. B's shortness in spades and his general strength obliged him to bid 3-Diamonds, which A shifted to 3-Hearts.

Ordinarily B would have overcalled with 3-No Trumps, but that opening two bid caused him to more carefully consider the situation. B knew that a two-suiter usually plays better at the suit the more strongly supported by partner than it will at no-trump. Had the opening bid been 1-Spade, B certainly would have bid 3-No Trumps. Afterwards A stated that he would not have ventured to overcall 3-No Trumps with either his poor five-card spades or his good four card hearts. Being wholly unable to support spades, B finally decided to assist his partner's second make and ended contracting with 4-Hearts.

As Y did not want to lose his two tricks in spades because dummy was short of that suit and could trump, Y's opening lead was his top heart, which trick was won by A's Q. Preferring to lead spades from dummy, the declarer led his top club, winning the trick in dummy, and returning a spade. Y won the trick with his A and led back his last heart, which A won with his K.

The declarer led his good spade, followed by a low spade. Dummy trumped and Z overtrumped, winning the second trick for his side. Although Z did not at the moment know it, the game was over. Nothing that could be led could make the slightest difference in the final score. One spade trick could be won by Y, and that was all. Z tried leading his top club. B won the trick. A low diamond was led back and won with A's K. The lead of the A of hearts picked up Z's last trump. A spade trick was given to Y, and A won the remaining tricks.

Had the hand been played at spades there must have been lost three trump tricks and one heart trick, allowing A only three odd. Game could not have been made at no trumps against perfect defense. The only game-going make was 4-Hearts and B had surmised this. If he had been dealt another high stop in diamonds his best declaration would have been 3-No Trumps.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Formal Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My friend claims that when the bride wears a white bridal dress and veil it calls for a formal affair and reception. Is this correct?

It has always been my understanding that a bride could wear the white dress and veil when the reception is informal, or even when there is to be no reception. The wedding would take place either in the morning or in the afternoon.

MISS . . .

Your friend is right when she says that when the bride wears the white bridal dress and veil she stamps her wedding as formal. Indeed this is the thing that does indicate the degree of formality of the wedding. If she wears this formal attire, then her marriage is formal and, if she has a reception, that too must be formally planned.

But it is not at all necessary for her to have a reception. She may have her marriage, in church or at home or in a hotel, formally planned, and then not have a reception at all. Very often brides plan this.

Acknowledgment

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have received a card announcing the engagement of a young couple who live out of town. Should I write them a note in reply? I am anxious to do the right thing.

ONE OF YOUR READERS.

Although it isn't good form to send a formal card of announcement of an engagement, it would be the natural thing for us to acknowledge the announcement by writing a note of best wishes to the couple who sent the announcement. It really isn't necessary to do this, but, if the couple are friends of yours, I am sure that you will wish to extend your congratulations to the groom-to-be, and your best wishes to the bride-to-be.

Informal Wedding Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married at a small church wedding at 6:30 in the evening.

1. If the groom and his attendants wear tuxedo suits, does the groom wear a white tie and the attendants black ties?

2. Will white gloves be correct to wear?

GEORGE.

1. If the groom and his attendants are to wear tuxedo suits, they all should wear the black bow tie that is appropriate to the tuxedo suit. White ties are worn with tailcoats, the formal evening suit; black ties are worn with dinner jackets, the tuxedo suit.

2. With tuxedo suits, no gloves should be worn.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When the gums are tender, bleed easily, use a toothbrush with soft bristles. Massage the gums with fingertips, using a bit of toothpaste. Follow the brushing of the teeth with a mouth wash swished about so that it will pick up particles of foreign substances.

To retain the erect figure, to keep the lines of the body svelte and graceful, sleep with the body stretched flat. No huddling, no throwing of the shoulders forward. Correct sleeping position has a good deal to do with the preservation of the youthful shape.

Mr. Wong, Young Chinese, Sells Shanghai 'War,' To Movie Studio

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate.

HOLLYWOOD, March 14.

Hollywood knows how to open its arms as well as to rebuff. Wellesley Wong, an educated young Chinese, came out here with a story and, on his first day, fell right into the lap of fortune.

Still a little incredulous, he has a check from Universal and hears that his story, "Shanghai Interlude," may be a starring vehicle for Lew Ayres.

Lew Ayres

The fact that the story, in its present form has a 45-year-old aviator for a hero, should prove no great obstacle. Any Hollywood scenario department can lop 20 years off a hero's age in a jiffy.

Mr. Wong, a graduate of the University of London, has written of the present conflict in China, and describes his story as a contrast between the ideals and traditions of two yellow peoples.

The young author also has been signed to help in the preparation of the movie treatment.

HERE'S GOSSIP

Tallulah Bankhead has been out of her picture for several days with laryngitis . . . Dolores Del Rio tells me that Honolulu went wild over Richard Barthelmess. They also wanted to lionize Ronald Colman, but the retiring Ronnie slipped into the hotel through the back door, remained in his room all day and ducking onto the ship, went into immediate seclusion in his cabin.

Mr. Barthelmess

The Howard Hawkses are having a great time in the islands, reports Dolores. They have discovered some caves never seen before by a white man and have found some valuable relics. Howard also has a motion picture of an octopus hunt. This sounds incredible, but Dolores says you spear the octopus, then grasp it firmly and kill it by biting a certain sensitive nerve . . . That, I give you, is news. When a man bites an octopus! . . . Jack Oakie is in Palm Springs—his first trip. And I'll wager they won't be forgetting it . . . Florence Eldridge has improved from her operation so rapidly she will be able to leave the hospital on Monday . . . Saw Mariam Hopkins lunching with Austin Parker in the Paramount commissary. They continue to remain the best of friends despite their estrangement . . . Ronald Coleman calls "The Brothers Karamozov" the Russian version of the Four Marx Brothers . . . Harmony Haynes, a fan magazine writer, is the latest to sell a novel about Hollywood . . . Today's mail brings me an interesting book of memoirs by Whitford Kane, now playing out here in the Walter Hampden company of "Cyrano De Bergerac." Mr. Kane's book is called "Are We All Wet?"

MARLENE GETS THRILL

The other evening Marlene Dietrich paid her first visit to the wrestling matches, and she tells me she was quite amused. Particularly by the mugging and the howls of these burly showmen.

With a little help, I'm able to report that the German star was wearing a double-breasted topcoat of beige and brown tweed, with thickly padded shoulders. Her mannish suit was a knit-mixture in dark green. She wore a white angora turtle-necked sweater—a feminine counterpart of the kind Clark Gable affects—and a beige felt slouch hat.

PART FOR ARMSTRONG

After testing half a dozen people, Universal has signed Robert Armstrong to play the masculine lead in "Radio Patrol." Tom Reed's story about the cruising police officers of our modern cities. The girl—Mae Clarke still is too ill to play her—may be Lila Lee. At least, she was being tested yesterday. June Clyde and Sidney Toler are two other new names to this cast.

Uncertainty!

Street Singer In the Penn

Arthur Tracy, "The Street Singer" of radio, opened in the Penn Saturday as an added attraction to the current bill, which is headlined by Marion Davies' newest picture, "Polly of the Circus," and which has Al Wohlman's "Make It Snappy" revue on the stage.

Mr. Tracy presents about six songs. The first comes out of a radio loud-speaker before he appears before the curtain. He sings all of his numbers into a microphone; has little or nothing to say when it comes to public speaking, and gets a great, great big hand. His singing voice is his show, and we guess that's as it should be.

—C. E. G.

Walter Huston Takes Law Into the West

"Law and Order," melodrama of frontier days and gun-toting gentlemen, opened a week's engagement in the Harris Saturday. Action takes place in the town of Tombstone, Arizona, where men once were hoodlums. And Mr. Huston makes the hoodlums step. Supporting cast includes Harry Carey, Raymond Hatton and Ralph Ince.

Plays and Players -:- By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Opening next Monday night, March 21, the fifth play of the fourth Theater Guild subscription season will be presented in the Nixon. For this, the last play of the current series, the Theater Guild is presenting Bernard Shaw's latest play, "Too True to Be Good," with Beatrice Lillie and Hope Williams heading a cast that includes Hugh Sinclair, Ernest Cossert, Leo G. Carroll, Pedro de Cordoba, Frank Shannon and others. Seats will go on sale in the Nixon box office Thursday morning, March 17.

Two weeks from tonight, the Alvin will offer, as its Easter Week attraction, the current season's edition of George White's "Scandals." The featured comics of the production are Willie and Eugene Howard. Rudy Valee, popular crooner of the radio and cabarets, also is prominent in Mr. White's big revue. So is Ethel Barrymore Colt, seen in the same theater last season, when she was making her first appearance on the stage with her mother, Ethel Barrymore, in "Scarlet Sister Mary."

Pittsburgh theater managers, including Harry Brown of the Nixon, George Young of the Alvin, John H. Harris of the Warner houses in the district, M. J. Cullen of the Penn and D. C. Cool of the Fulton, are directing a telegraphic barrage upon the Allegheny congressional district protesting against the proposed 10 per cent tax upon amusements. They claim such a tax would be an unreasonable burden upon theaters, in the face of present conditions, and the managers of legitimate houses feel certain that no quicker method of killing the legitimate stage could be devised. They suggest that the matter is of sufficient importance to theater patrons, whose pocket-books would be affected, that they should be interested enough to write to Congressmen of their districts and add their personal protests to those of the managers.

He was grand with Garbo in 'SUSAN LENOX'

But when he holds Marion Davies in his arms—it's a new thrill! Don't miss it!"

FASHIONABLE WOMEN PREFER PRACTICAL BEACH GARMENTS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 14. — So many of us have stayed in town this year, aided and abetted by the extremely mild winter. Therefore we have not sent you so many sketches of the beach things worn at the delightful resorts of the Riviera. But as we go towards spring thoughts of the summer refuse to be put aside and so we have asked someone lucky enough to have a place in the sun this winter to check up on the type of beach wear being worn. Word comes that the practical garment made of sturdy fabric is the popular choice of even the most fashionable women. The bizarre beach pajama with shrieking color contrasts, so much seen a season or so ago, is completely passe. Wool and wool jersey are tremendously used for beach pajamas. White, blue and red are much used in combination. Swim suits are brief, in many cases the brassiere top obtaining. No doubt these fashions will be part of the vacation wardrobe this summer, as will the little coats of straw and straw accessories, shown at the recent spring openings here.

JUST TO HELP you to get over the remainder of winter and turn your thoughts to happy summer days, we are sending you sketches of two models worn by smart women at a smart Riviera place. Both models were seen by us before they went South, when they were shown by Mary Mowitzky. The pajamas are in wool jersey, the two colors, brick red and navy blue, being smartly combined. A clever and harmonious way of using the two colors is to be had in the belt of navy blue patent leather trimmed with ball-buttons in red lacquer. The godets that lend width to the pajamas are, like the front panel of the bodice, of the red jersey. Lots of women are wearing beach coats over their swim suits as an alternative to the ubiquitous beach pajama. Shown is a coat in brown cotton eponge with large kimono sleeves in yellowish-green eponge. The coat is lined throughout in the same yellow-green material.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Lupe called . . . Said her last name is pronounced "Vellezzz," and not Vel-ez or Vellissss . . . And that she's in love again with someone you know very well . . . But before I could coax her into telling me his name she hung up . . . There appears to be some discussion about the "world's most prolific writer" since Edgar Wallace passed on . . . The palm should go to E. Phillips Oppenheim, who has written 120 full-length novels plus lots and lots of other stuff . . . Two seats went to waste at the Ziegfeld last night down front on the aisle . . . Someone used your name and then never called for them . . . Probably done by the same type of fiends who write taunting letters to the Lindberghs . . . Your line about a class magazine being on the verge brought a number of aches to the VF staff, which wants you to know that it is enjoying good health . . . I told Donald you never even had it in mind . . . A chap representing Carl Laemmle, Jr., phoned. No message . . . Paramount won't touch a theme dealing with columnists. Not yet, anyway, although three firms are plotting as many flickers centered about the type.

Number of calls from strangers, who heard you could get anybody a job . . . How did that ever start? . . . I told them all to apply to the War Against Depression Headquarters which, by the way, is thankful for youknowhat . . . "Follies" to disband Sunday, no Coast tour . . . You awakened my family the other dead of the night. Pulleez! . . . Those things are always in the very front of the file next to my ceil . . . Margaret Sullivan, who was Winthrop Ames' phone op for 19 years, would have rounded out 20 years if she hadn't left him six months ago to work at the Guthrie McClintic offices . . . So on Feb'y 29th she returned to the Ames outfit to make it an even two decades . . . Please hurl an orchid at Daphne Pollard, who worked with a 103 fever at the Palace until she keeled over . . . Then some mouse started the rumor that she walked out on the show because of Frank Fay . . . She's ailing plenty at her suite . . . About 90 "Pepitaphs" in the mail, but mostly ones you've used, or not at all gay or clever, so I wickered them to save you the eye-ache . . . Nice girl?

Fred Allen dug up some material, pretty good, too . . . Did you ever see that strange old gent in the Central Park West sector near 69th? . . . He walks his Maltese cat on a leash and pays no attention to the oglers . . . Mary Pickford has won the boys on the papers, they all think she's pretty all right . . . A Chicago rag, on the Monday prior to the Lindbergh baby theft, published a tale that there was a rumor around that the child had been snatched . . . The same night they announced over the air a denial that there had been any kid-snapping . . . Jack Diamond's widow is trying to get a mortgage on his Acra (N. Y.) estate . . . Glad you reprinted that "step-in" quip—it showed up two echoes who had taken it without credit to the original source . . . That reporter who risked his life for his paper so much by printing alleged "inside stuff" on the local outlaws, has been rewarded by dismissal—and not only that, but the victims of his pen now know his name, and he looked pretty worried today.

Be careful of "V"—he is irresponsible . . . Mark Henkman of Steeplechase, Long Island, a concessionaire, now claims the first hunch on the Lindy baby case—"because a wax figure of the infant melted a month before!" . . . What next? . . . Marjorie King made the wrong crack at Bert Taylor's party and Gary Cooper's old gal blew up . . . You wouldn't know Ona Munson, anymore . . . Incidentally, her old boy friend, Mr. Lubitsch, had a friend call . . . Wanted to talk to you about the item . . . Told him to write it . . . Will you please look over that stuff in the slot to your right? . . . And get rid of a lot of it? . . . What about all that sappy verse? . . . Don't you ever notice when a girl puts on a new typewriter ribbon? . . . You're very welcome . . . Woollcott wants to see you — some morning before you go to bed, he said . . . How does that Pola Negri story, with gestures go, again? . . . Jessel says someone signed his name to a "hastily written" wire, and not to take it seriously . . . But that the last item was Ben Turpin-eyed, anyway.

Univ. of Notre Dame representative phoned. Said that months ago you itemed that the ND basketball team probable would be good enough to make people wonder whether football is the major sport at the university . . . He wanted you to know that up to Thursday (today) the team had won 17 out of 19—winning 15 straight . . . And that, it appears to him, dramatic critics make good sports prophets no matter what Congresswomen think . . . You may like these Pepitaphs: (L. Edwards)—"Here lies W. W.: A coupla other guys had to dig up the dirt for him!" . . . (F. L. Holland)—"Here lies W. W.: Haw!" . . . Another from same source: "Here lies W. W. No More—No Less!" . . . Best of this morn's mail, I thought, was this: (B. Golden)—"Here Lies W. W.: WHOOPEEEEE!"

R. J. O'Brien suggests that you call "Portrait"—a "Winchelliloquy" . . . That gorgeous thing in the movietones called Mary Elizabeth Young is Bettie MacDonald, ex-Ziegfeld darling . . . A Fox exec has the tremors over her . . . What's all this buzz about another well-known newspaperman, whose wife will sue for dee-eye-vee-oh-are-see? . . . Frances Maddux is in town . . . She did plenty all right at Miami Beach, I hear . . . Where is that Joss House on W. Forty-ninth street that makes a girl's head swim like an acrobat's when she is handed the headliner's pay envelope by mistake on Satdee night?

John Rumsey, of Mayfair, received a complaint (anonymously) that a woman was not going to his place anymore because, she said, "That Winchell person gets all his news there, etc." . . . I reminded Rumsey you hadn't been there in a year . . . And the only news one could get at Mayfair was seeing what the ex-wives were wearing and whom the ex-husbands were bringing.—Your Girl Friday.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 14.—Former County Detective Tony Bell, sentenced to three years in the Federal Reformatory at Chillicothe, O., last week in Buffalo, is back in Fayette County. Bledsoe and Cosmo Stangoni, indicted for the murder of Constable Jack Donohoe, a crime which Bell confessed after being acquitted on a murder charge.

Search for the murder gun, which Bell said Bledsoe tossed into the Monongahela River at Nemacolin, was futile.

2 To Reduce the Severity of Colds: If a cold slips by these precautions . . . or strikes without warning . . . don't neglect it. At bedtime massage your throat and chest with Vicks VapoRub. PITTSBURGH IS HOST this week to Arthur Tracy, known to millions of radio listeners as "The Street Singer."

The famous Columbia artist is making personal appearances at Loew's Penn Theater, and during his stay, is making his network broadcasts from the studios of Station WJAS. He sang from here yesterday afternoon and is on the air again tonight and Wednesday night at 10:45 from WJAS.

Mr. Tracy

"The Street Singer" has a style distinctly all his own which has carried him to the front ranks of radio features in the last year. He is recipient of the third largest batch of fan mail on the Columbia system, being exceeded in this respect only by the American School of the Air and Kate Smith. Tracy originally was in vaudeville. After starting his radio work in an afternoon program, his popularity soon won for him the evening periods three nights a week. In addition, he is on a commercial program Friday evenings.

He sings to the accompaniment of an accordian which he usually plays himself. Right now, however, a broken finger, suffered in an automobile accident, makes it necessary for him to have another accompanist.

Seth Parker goes into the Bowery of New York tonight to hold one of his "githerin's" for the down-and-outers there. In the program, broadcast from a basement, Phillips Lord, otherwise "Seth Parker," entertains his guests with the songs and stories and homespun philosophy which have made him famous. It is a network feature on WCAE at 10:30.

Another kind of bridge is on WJAS at 7:30. "Easy Aces," the comedy sketch, starts its new schedule of Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

Lawrence Tibbett, back from a week's appearance with the Metropolitan Opera Company, sings "Valentine's Farewell," from Gounod's "Faust" on WCAE at 8:30.

"Songs of Israel," a new series of distinctive Jewish music, has its inaugural program on KQV at 8.

The Old Ranger tells the story of a condemned convict who escaped and fled to Death Valley on KDKA at 8:30.

Walter Winchell's "magic carpet," all bedecked with shamrocks, brings the music of the Siamsa Gael Band from Dublin, Ireland, Thursday night. Sure, it's March 17.

Due to illness, the KQV Players have had to make three substitutions in their cast during the first five weeks of their 10-episode serial, "Doctor Dragonette." But the sixth episode tonight has the original cast intact—at least, they were all out for rehearsal.

Allegro Grazioso ... Gretry-Pochon
Quartet in D ... Alexandre Borodin

The Yost String Quartet gave its last concert of this season in Schenley ballroom with the usual devotees of chamber music on hand. It was in many respects the best concert of their season. While listening to Pochon's "Indian Suite" we were reminded again that upon this organization alone can we rely for hearing new chamber music, and it is hoped that its officers will again rally support to keep it before our public.

Mr. Lissfelt

Alfred Pochon was formerly the 'cellist of the Flonzaley Quartet who has recently devoted himself to making new music and arranging old masters for string quartet. He has gone far afield in seeking out this Indian music, which he is content to gather from the best sources in libraries rather than from wigwam far afield from music related to the strings alone, and yet has been so successful in keeping tone volume and quality within bounds, and has actually imitated in a startlingly true fashion the redskin's tom-tom and woodwinds. There were several familiar tunes which we all remember from popular songs and the interplay of varying rhythms was most clearly managed.

There was an "Etching" of Gaylord Yost, which we have often admired on account of its rich scoring. The quartet lost out for a few seconds on the Gretry "Allegro" but the well-known Haydn Variations went merrily along.

The Borodin Quartet has much admirable music, a particularly virile work, and it made a good finale to the season.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

ANOTHER VENUE CHANGE FOR KLINE CONSIDERED

Politicians Back Non-Partisan Relief

MARTIN, COYNE, MANSFIELD JOIN MOVE

Phillips, Kaufmann Also Indorse Plan for Meeting On New State Action

By MARK SHIELDS

Republican State Chairman Edward Martin yesterday indorsed the suggestion that political representatives of all factions in the Republican party in Pennsylvania, together with business, financial and welfare leaders, come together in conference to determine if a sound and harmonious program of appropriation and revenue bills cannot be worked out as a basis for calling the Legislature into special session late this month to afford relief to Pennsylvania communities hard hit by the economic crisis.

Gen. Martin, who in addition to being state chairman, is also State Treasurer, declined to commit himself to any revenue-raising measures in advance of such a conference, but declared he would enter such a meeting with an open mind, and concerned only for legislative measures which would be to the benefit of all of Pennsylvania.

SEES VALUE IN SURVEY

Gen. Martin said:

"I am always ready to confer on such subjects. In the present situation it would be idle to call a special session of the Legislature without such a conference.

"But I believe a gathering of business and industrial leaders, together with welfare experts and political representatives from all parts of the state, could determine in a short time whether such a legislative session would be a success in meeting the problem which unquestionably is serious in the great industrial communities.

"Gov. Pinchot, of course, should be invited to such a conference, as should Auditor General Charles A. Waters, one of the state's fiscal officers.

"This conference should be non-partisan, with no participant looking for any political advantage.

"If we could fix upon a program, a special session of the Legislature could be called the latter part of this month, and complete all the necessary legislative steps toward relief within two weeks."

COYNE DUBIOUS ON BONDS

With Martin as he was interviewed was State Senator James J. Coyne, who echoed the sentiments of the state chairman, and expressed himself as dubious of the efficacy of bond issues to meet the present emergency.

Senator William D. Mansfield, who in addition to being a County Commissioner, also is Allegheny County Republican chairman, said yesterday he would favor such a conference, and would be glad to participate.

Mansfield said:

"A conference of this nature should meet in the clean spirit of the public welfare. No one should attempt to play politics with such a subject. No one would dare to in a conference, as his purpose would be quickly revealed, where it might be concealed in a legislative session.

"If we could arrive at some understanding in advance of a session the legislative steps would be easy, and there would not be the confusion and bickering which marked the last special session, an abortive gesture toward helping prostrate business and the unemployed."

PHILLIPS TO HELP

Frank R. Phillips, head of the Allegheny County Emergency Welfare Association, planned today to prod eastern associates on the subject in an effort to bring about such a conference. Phillips, in common with the political leaders, agreed that a legislative session called in an atmosphere of politics, and without preliminary conferences, would be a hazardous experiment.

Edgar J. Kaufmann, Pittsburgh department store head, who has been in the forefront of relief movements, and who has had friendly relations with Gov. Pinchot in recent months, is pushing for such a conference. Kaufmann was in Chicago Saturday when a riot, with casualties, occurred in the business district, an experience which intensified his zeal in the interests of relief.

It is recognized that no political figure should instigate the proposed conference to determine whether a special session is feasible. Plans now in the minds of Pittsburghers interested in the subject call for invitations to be sent out by a Philadelphia business and welfare leader in whom both organization politicians and the Governor have confidence.

FLOUR ASKED FOR NEEDY IN COUNTY

Emergency Board Makes Appeal to Red Cross; Harris Plan Speeded

The Emergency Association today asked for 1,200,000 pounds of flour from the American National Red Cross Society to feed needy families in Allegheny County.

S. G. Claney, director of relief, asked for the flour and called on welfare agencies to designate their specific wants.

The flour will be kept in a warehouse at Twenty-ninth street and Liberty avenue, donated by the Denny estate. The flour is now being milled from stocks held by the National Farm Board.

The plan of Senator Frank J. Harris to provide relief for 24,000 families is looked upon by leaders of the Emergency Association and the Welfare Fund as of vital importance in facing the present financial crisis. The Welfare Fund will not benefit directly from the campaign, but anything which will lift the heavy load from the Emergency Association will relieve the Welfare Fund treasury.

Organization of the Harris campaign is being pushed as rapidly as possible. In order to help the 24,000 families, it will be necessary to find 24,000 persons or groups of persons willing to give $100. This sum will provide each of the needy families with $33.33 per month.

Efforts are to be made to give a more personal touch to the campaign than has been found in previous efforts. Each donor will have positive assurance that a family is getting food and shelter as a result of the gift. As the number of subscribers to the drive last fall was 115,000, the goal which has been set is within reach, workers say, if the public responds.

Fume Death Trial Awaits Two Girls

The involuntary manslaughter trial of Dick Clowes, president of a fumigating company, which grew out of the death of two women in a house at 12 East Ohio street his operatives were fumigating, was postponed.

Two girl witnesses are in Oklahoma, and the District Attorney's office does not wish to take up the case until they can be brought here.

RECOVERS HER VOICE

MISS EUNICE THERMAN, 23 . . . SHE LOST, FOUND HER VOICE

SPEECHLESS 4 YEARS, AGAIN TALKS

Treatment Here Restores Voice Lost in Chemical Laboratory at School

In the little town of Sonora, Ky., today a small blonde girl alighted from a train from Pittsburgh. She was able to greet her friends who met her at the station in clear, audible tones for the first time in nearly four years.

More than three and a half years ago she was laughing aloud at home one evening from the sheer joy of being alive, healthy and 19. When she stopped laughing she tried to speak. Nor words came. She could not utter a word. She had lost her voice.

She was not worried at first, but as day after day passed and her voice did not return she grew heart-sick. She seemed to have lost the power of articulation.

She went to doctors in Sonora. They could not help her. She visited the throat clinic in Louisville, Ky. She said:

"About a million people looked down my throat, it seemed, doctors and specialists. I was worn to a frazzle. One wanted to operate, another to take out my tonsils, some advocated gland extracts, others medicine and sprays. I tried ultra-violet rays, a chiropractor, vocal lessons, to no avail. I went to Texas and tried living in a drier climate. It did not help."

Four weeks ago Miss Eunice Therman, now 23, came to Pittsburgh to study with Dr. Frank Hipps, who has been restoring lost voices and correcting speech defects at the Byron W. King School of Oratory, for 17 years.

For nearly four weeks, Miss Therman practiced with Dr. Hibbs four hours a day. Instead of the pencil and pad which she had used the past four weeks to communicate with friends, she can now use her voice, speaking slowly and with a little difficulty yet, but speaking nevertheless. She said:

"I am so happy. I almost thought my life was over. It was terrible meeting strangers. My family got so that they could understand my mumblings, but I couldn't go out alone."

'FIX' CHARGES SPUR ACTION BY COUNSEL

'More Reason Now' for Seeking Shift, Coll Says; Push Trials in Butler

Request for a second change of venue in the Kline-Succop trial as a result of the indictment of eight persons on jury-fixing charges by the Butler County grand jury was hinted today by E. G. Coll, one of the defense counsel.

Coll said:

"We have more reasons now for asking a change of venue than we had in the first place. However, we have not discussed the subject. It is unfortunate that some jackasses did some ill-advised things."

Although failure to locate three of them may prevent it, District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, of Butler County, announced he would try to bring all those indicted Saturday to trial by next Monday.

The grand jury investigation resulted in the trial of Kline and his former supplies director, B. L. Succop, on malfeasance charges, scheduled to start today, being postponed to May 2 by Judge Thomas D. Finletter, of Philadelphia, assigned to try the case by the Supreme Court.

The grand jury reported discovering "widespread effort to influence and corrupt" the prospective jurors.

Those indicted were the Rev. Father Francis Clifford, of Butler County; Howard Gross, Pittsburgh city employe; Robert Cunningham, Allegheny County contractor; Mrs. May Daughterty Scott, said to be the wife of a Pittsburgh policeman; Bert Daughterty, said to be Mrs. Scott's brother; Lee Norris, Roy C. Aiken, of Bakerstown, and William H. Cook, of Hillhard, Butler County.

District Attorney Negley announced that Aiken had confessed his guilt and would be taken before the court for early sentence.

ORPHANED GIRL HAS NEW GRIEF

Trouble dogs the heels of Gertrude Matheine, 16, of 1147 Mellon street.

Orphaned by the death of her father, Carl Matheine, in their home, 6588 Frankstown avenue, Friday, she was taking some of his personal belongings to a new home at the Mellon street address, offered her by friends Saturday, when a revolver she was handling accidentally discharged, police say, the bullet striking her friend, Wallace Carson, 20, of 1202 Pine Ridge street, in the leg.

Released by the East End police on her own recognizance, pending Carson's recovery, Gertrude today attended funeral services for her father in St. Peter and Paul's Catholic Church, East Liberty.

Former Assembly Member in Race

John B. Yellig, former state representative from the Sixth District, has announced his candidacy for another term. He stated:

"I am in favor of the repeal of the prohibition enforcement act. I am in favor of the repeal of the Blue Laws. I am in favor of a law that will bring about fair rates from public utility companies. I will vote for laws for old age pensions. I am in favor and will vote for all bills of interest to veterans of all wars. I favor and will vote for all bills for retrenchment in state, county and municipal governments consistent with progressive and adequate public service."

Wife Is Candidate, Husband Breaks Leg

Native Sons in Full Bloom But They'll Fade

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

What becomes of the good old native son after he announces his presidential hopes, fears and nostrums?

He goeth where the woodbine twines and disappeareth from the haunts of men. Like the furlong hoss, he has a lot of early foot. But he ain't got the legs.

He gets out there in front and sets a pace hot enough to burn biscuits. But along about July an old campaigner whistles up and looks him in the eye.

They pay off on the old campaigner. The native son goes back to the stables for another four years.

But he has done his duty. He has fanned the blaze until the real firemen got there.

There are now exactly 165 native sons striving for the nomination. They're all mighty fine men and they are all important. Too bad.

LAY 'TAG' DELAY TO POLITICS

Charges were made today that politicians were blocking passage by City Council of a codified traffic ordinance proposed by the Better Traffic Committee because of the elimination of traffic tag "fixing" privileges.

Councilmen, in denial, blamed the cost of advertising the new ordinance as the cause of delay, although this, friends of the legislation estimated, would be less than $1,000.

Under the new measure to be introduced in Council within the next three weeks, distribution of tags to the Department of Public Safety would be under control of the City Controller. Monthly reports to both the Mayor and Council are required.

No such check is kept now, tags being distributed to police by the Bureau of Traffic Planning. Consequently, it was pointed out, thousands of tags are "fixed" by politicians for those "who voted right," a privilege they wish to retain.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, March 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, sir, had a couple of mighty interesting and charming callers out at the ranch Friday, Secretary Kellogg, and Senator Gillette, of Massachusetts, couple of mighty fine men that have played quite a part in our history the last few years. The thing I liked about their visit, they had no opinion to offer on "when we had scraped bottom." Most every man you meet can tell you who will be our next President. But these ignorant, uninformed gentlemen had no idea. I have always believed that if the very, very, proper inducement were presented that you could smoke Calvin out. Mr. Gillette thought no, Mr. Kellogg, yes. I have told many alleged jokes on both of them, and it was gratifying to know I could do so and still retain their friendship.

Yours, WILL.

FREE AIR TOUR SPURS YOUTHS TO STUDY

Aviation Knowledge Gain Seen in Contest; Entries Visit Nearby Airports

As the contest for the free airplane trip to Detroit and return nears the end, it is safe to assume that the boys of Pittsburgh are today better equipped with information about the development of aviation than ever before.

Hundreds of boys from 15 to 20 years have been searching for more than a week for the information required to correctly answer the 24 aeronautical questions in the test the Sun-Telegraph has launched in co-operation with the National Aircraft Exposition, which opens at Detroit Saturday, April 2, and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

The contest was devised to urge the youth of Pittsburgh to become air-minded, to educate themselves on the development of flying.

2 NEW QUESTIONS

There are 24 questions in the test and the information required to correctly answer them is easily obtainable. The two questions for today are as follows:

17. What was the length of the first air mail route and what three cities did it connect?

18. How many miles of airways are there in the country today?

In addition to answering the 24 questions, the last two of which will appear Thursday, the candidates are to write a letter of 100 words telling from their observations the advantages of air mail and air travel.

The winner will not only get a free trip to Detroit and return by plane, but will be a special guest at the aircraft exposition, will be given a 60-mile sky ride around Detroit and will be shown the interesting places of Detroit in a tour by automobile including the Ford automobile plant.

FLYING SCHEDULE

The boy who wins the Detroit airplane trip will follow this schedule:

[illegible]

The sets of answers and the letter must be in the office of the Aviation Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, before midnight, March 23. They will be examined by a board of three judges and in case of ties, a duplicate award will be made.

Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Supt. Peter P. Walsh announced that a new style uniform with a military roll collar is to be adopted. In addition to the new uniform, which will be of heavy whipcord, the officers will also wear Sam Browne belts.

A new cap, modeled after those worn by New York officers, completes the uniform, which the men will adopt Decoration Day. Walsh said the officers will be given two years to acquire the new uniform.

Dry Agents Seize 3 In Weekend Raids

Three arrests were made by prohibition agents in raids over the weekend, according to reports made at headquarters today.

Those arrested were Frank Labona, of Sixth avenue, Homestead; John Halewicz and Mrs. Mary Halewicz, both of East Carson street. Agents said they found liquor in places operated by the persons under arrest. The agents also reported seizing bar equipment in a raid at 211 West Eighth street, Homestead.

Dry Agents Seize Sunken Garden In Raid

It was among the fixtures, valued at $50,000, seized in a raid during the cocktail hour on the Petit Riche restaurant, just off Park avenue.

The agents listed among other attractions 300 bottles of what they called "choicest liquers."

The case of Ray Willoughby, 35, of 3817 Greentree street, former clerk in the City Public Works Department, charged with having embezzled about $750 in juggling payrolls in the Highway and Sewers Bureau, was considered by the March grand jury today.

Among the witnesses called were Public Works Director E. G. Lang and Deputy City Controller John H. Schilpp, Jr. At the time of Willoughby's arrest Lang said he had confessed.

EXCHANGE ASKS AID FOR WOMEN

Faced by a deficit threatening the livelihood of nearly 400 women whose handiwork is sold over its counters, the Women's Industrial Exchange, Penn avenue, has issued a general appeal for contributions to aid its rummage sale on April 7, 8 and 9.

The committee in charge of the sale headed by Mrs. William P. Snyder, Jr., is arranging for the use of a Wood street store room.

In its appeal yesterday, the committee asked that housewives donate furniture, pictures, draperies, glass, china and other articles that otherwise would be discarded in spring housecleaning to be disposed of at the sale.

Mrs. Snyder will be aided in arranging the sale by Mrs. B. F. Jones III, and Mrs. Simon Patterson.

Injured by Auto, Taken to Hospital

Thomas Bedner, 69, of 3312 Ridgeway street, is in St. Francis Hospital with serious head injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Thirty-first street and Penn avenue today. The driver, P. D. McKinney, 300 Second street, Pitcairn, took him to the hospital police reported.

$1,000 THREAT BALKS POLICE

North Side police waited three hours at Milroy and East streets early today in vain for suspects who earlier telephoned a threat to Leo Hatterer, of 415 Milroy street, demanding $1,000 or his child, Wilmer, 6, and his 18-month-old granddaughter, Edith Joy Hatterer.

The message ordered Hatterer to appear at East and Milroy streets with the children or the money, with the alternative of "a death in the family," according to police. After a three-hour wait, police described the threat as a hoax.

The plan was devised by John S. Eberman, Pittsburgh broker. If it is approved by the board, efforts will be made to have it enacted by Congress.

WORKERS MOURN PASSING OF INCLINE

Cut to South Side Proves Losing Venture

The St. Clair incline, with more than a half a mile of track from Josephine street, near South Twenty-second street, to Salisbury street, near Arlington avenue, has been a short cut for the mill workers to their homes on Arlington Heights. It was shut down last month.

The incline, chartered in 1885, was formerly controled by the Mellon interests. In 1917 it was shut down. Ten Hilltop business men paid $75,000 to the Mellons for their stock, and with a capitalization of $225,0000, reorganized as the St. Clair Inclined Plane Company.

LOSING VENTURE

August Sprung, secretary and treasurer since the reorganization, said:

"We have been operating for a long time at a loss, and it is hard to say whether we will start up again. The two planes and road bed are in good condition. A cable on one of the planes must be replaced. That will cost $900. Other equipment will cost about $1,000. Our total receipts for 1931 were $12,241.42. The operating expenses last year were $12,494.54. Our books show 175,000 persons rode in the planes in 1931, as compared with 250,000 the pervious year.

WORKERS ARE SORRY

These figures do not include vehicle transportation. Our peak year was in 1923, with a passenger list of 400,000. So you can see that we have been operating at a loss ever since we took it over. We have done it for the people's convenience."

Mike Miniszewski, 72, of 2130 Freedom street, who had been riding the planes for the last 44 years, in deploring the discontinuance of the service said:

"We are all so sorry. I have worked at Jones & Laughlin mills on the South Side for 40 years, retiring four years ago. I have ridden on the planes all that time. It is a shame. We have to walk down the steep hill or walk up to Arlington avenue for a street car, and ride all the way around. We are all so sorry."

The officers and board members of the company are Dr. T. P. Cochran, president; Mr. Sprung, secretary and treasurer; Albert Perett, superintendent; Christ Kohler and James Boffy.

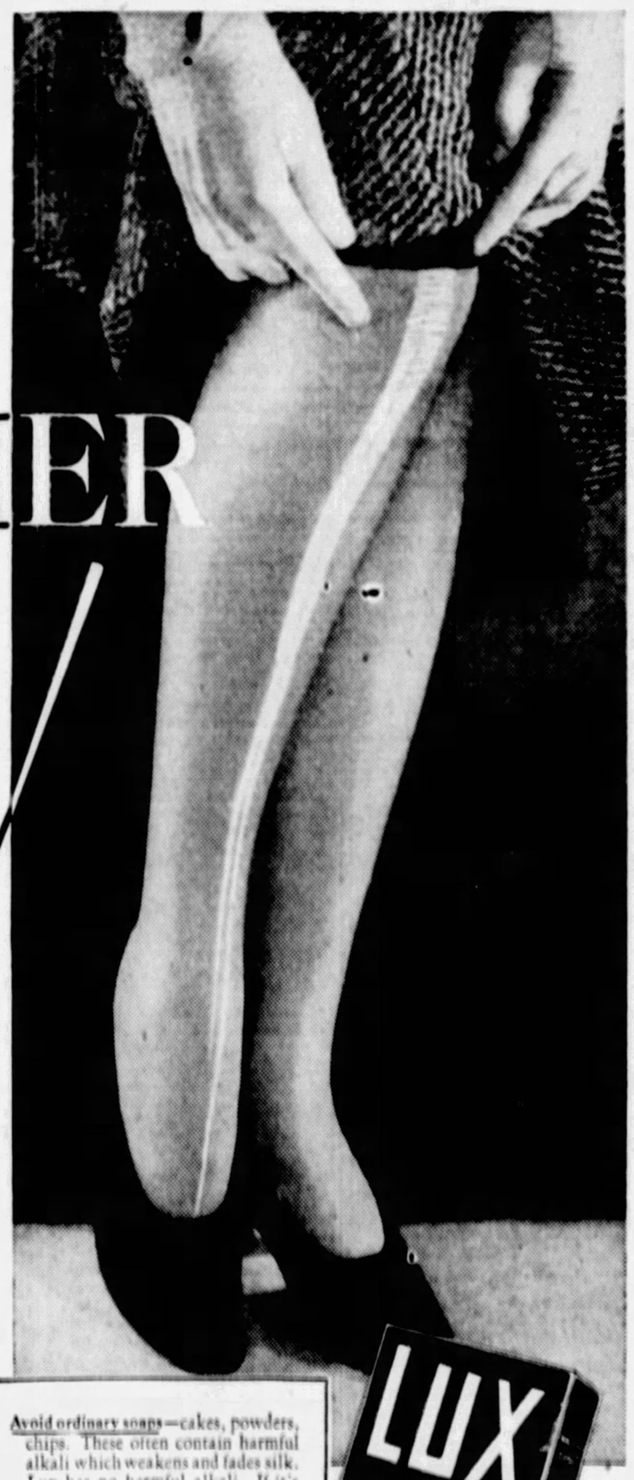
ANOTHER RUN!



Why doesn't she preserve the ELASTICITY* that makes stockings WEAR?

DOESN'T SHE KNOW what causes those runs that ruin stockings and waste money?

New stockings give under strain, because they are elastic. They stretch and spring right back again.

But if this precious elasticity is destroyed, the silk threads, instead of giving, break under strain. Then come those ruinous runs!

Lux is made to preserve elasticity. That is why it offers the sure way to make stockings fit and WEAR.

Wash this 2-minute way:
1. One teaspoon of Lux diamonds for each pair.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze through stockings, rinse.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys the elasticity of the silk. With Lux there's no rubbing. Press in a few dry Lux diamonds on stubborn spots.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens and fades silk. Lux has no harmful alkali. If it's safe in water it's safe in Lux.

With that as the clue, Grace was quickly located. "I thought I had lost you," exclaimed Mary, "but now I'm glad it happened. Talking to you like this is a hundred times better than letters!"

COMOROSKY FACING STIFF OPPOSITION

CONFIDENCE IS STILL strong among Pirate rooters that Adam Comorosky will pull the necessary comeback this year to quality for his old place in the larboard sector and round out the picket line with the two Waners. They can't conceive that his big drop from a batting average of .313 in 1930 to a mark of only .243 in 1931 meant anything more than a temporary slump—just a case of a good ball player having an off season. Besides, in the fight for the leftfield job, Commy has in his favor the fact that Manager Gibson naturally will prefer to have other things being equal, an outfield not made up entirely of left-hand hitters.

Adam Comorosky

But the Polish Express will have to demonstrate beyond question that he has recovered his finest playing wares, for reports from the front as the long exhibition series gets under way indicate that Adam has plenty of tough opposition for the port berth and that the new outfielders have shown up so well it will be no trouble to plug the hole satisfactorily if Commy fails to come through.

CAMP DOPE DISCLOSES that Forrest Jensen looks even better than he did last fall. He is aggressive, very intelligent in baseball matters, quick to grasp opportunities above the average in diamond smartness, throws well, is fast, a good hitter, can and will improve, and should make a high-class player.

Gus Dugas also is very promising. There is room for improvement in his fielding, but he is advancing steadily, has plenty of aggressiveness, a good arm, is fast on his feet and a real hitter, being one left-hand clouter for whom southpaw pitchers hold no terrors. As Umpire Bull Brown described his hitting in the American Association last year, he fairly murders forkhanders.

THE NEWEST OF the candidates for the outer patrol, Dave Barbee, has made a favorable impression. Differing from Jensen and Dugas in that he bats righthanded, he is a natural hitter of the slugging type. He covers a fair amount of ground, is fairly fast for a big man, has a good arm and bids fair to be a handy player to have around.

Altogether, it's an impressive and very promising trio that is crowding Comorosky for the leftfield assignment. Adam can't afford to do any loafing, and Manager Gibson may feel secure in the knowledge that the club will be well protected in the only open outfield berth, no matter what happens.

MAX CAREY will be the twenty-third manager under whom old Jack Quinn has served. The 22 pilots for whom the veteran spitballer has hurled on 17 clubs follow in order: John Maloy, Dunbar, Pa.; Carl Bishop, Connellsville, Pa.; Ross Stumm, Humbert, Pa.; Wilson Christner, Berlin, Pa.; E. J. Murphy, Washington, Pa.; William Armour, Toledo; Thomas Golden, Macon and Richmond; George Stallings, Hal Chase and Harry Wolverton, Yankees; George Stallings, Rochester, N. Y.; George Stallings, Braves; Otto Knabe, Baltimore Feds; George Stovall, Ham Patterson and Bill Essick, Vernon, Cal.; Clarence Rowland, White Sox; Miller Huggins, Yankees; Hugh Duffy, Frank Chance and Lee Fohl, Red Sox; Connie Mack, Athletics, and Wilbert Robinson, Dodgers.

Jack Quinn

"CONNIE MACK was the easiest of them all to work for," Quinn says, "and one of the reasons was that he really played the ball game for us several hours before we took the field. Connie kept a record of every ball pitched to every batter on every club we met, and when a pitcher was due for a turn in the box Manager Mack would take him to his office in the morning, bring out the records and lay plans accordingly.

"In the game itself you never carried out those plans, and if they failed to work, Connie accepted full responsibility. And, in addition to being a great manager, Connie is a great man—the biggest man in the matter of intelligence, heart and understanding with whom I ever have come in contact."

IN A RECENT three-game series between the Rosenblum Celtics and Renaissance Negro stars, who meet again tomorrow night at Motor Square Garden, the Reds won the first event 31 to 29, and the Rosies the next two, 31 to 25 and 31 to 26. Before they were tripped by the Reds the Rosies won 27 straight.

After tomorrow night's appearance here the Rosies will play in Cumberland Wednesday and then tour the East until mid-April, playing about 30 more games before they will call it a season.

TUSS M'LAUGHRY, former star fullback at Westminster and now starting his seventh year as head football coach at Brown, is one of the coaches selected by a Boston sporting goods house to discuss various phases of gridiron play for the information of New England college and school mentors at an annual conference and open forum in the Hub on April 1. Others are Bill Bingham, of the rules committee; Bill Cowell, New Hampshire; Arthur Sampson, Harvard, and Martin Souders, Exeter. Herb McCracken, of Lafayette, and Joe McKenney, of Boston College, were the chief speakers at last year's conference. McLaughry will demonstrate some special lines of defensive play.

FLORIDA MAY HAVE a favorable climate for baseball training in late February and March, but as one of the scribes in St. Petersburg with the Yankees describes it, fabricating a diamond down there is quite an operation. It takes imported material and imported groundkeepers to provide a suitable playing field.

The buff clay of Georgia and the native red clay of Florida, both lumpy and damp, are put in sheet-iron ovens and dried. Then they are mixed together in a grinding machine that pulverizes them to a fine consistency, as soft as talcum powder. This makes the top soil for the diamond, and when rolled, and then baked by sun, gives the athletes an excellent playing surface.

A MAN WHO tries coaching in two sports may be a dismal failure at one and a huge success at the other. Witness the comparative records of Nibs Price, who was dropped as football coach but retained as basketball mentor by the University of California.

Price's football teams never caused anything in the nature of a national commotion. But in basketball it's a different story. Nibs has come through so brilliantly and consistently that his quintets have figured in the playoffs for the Pacific Coast Conference championship in eight of the last 10 seasons.

Laverne Fator

ONE OF HISTORY'S greatest jockeys, Earle Sande, tips Tick On to win the Kentucky Derby. Another of the turf's most famous riders, Laverne Fator, thinks Sande is all wrong. He can't see Tick On. Neither does he concede a chance to the co-favorite, Top Flight. Take Fator's word for it, there is nothing to it but E. R. Bradley's horse, Burgoo King. Fator himself is going to ride that colt, and pronounces him the class of the field. Though he has ridden more than 1,000 winners in other races, Fator has never won the Derby. That's his big ambition, and he says he never felt so sure of realizing it as he does this year. Laverne would like to remain in the saddle long enough to accomplish one other thing, the breaking of the record set by the late Fred Archer, greatest of all English jockeys. He admits there isn't much chance in that direction, however, for Archer, active from 1870 to 1885, rode 2,748 winners before he quit.

BASS BATTLES BOJARSKI

CHARLEROI FOE OF HOMESTEAD PASSERS

By JULIUS LEVIN

One of the most attractive battles of the W. P. I. A. L. basketball elimination series is offered the followers of the scholastic sport in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight when Homestead, champion of Section VII, meets Charleroi, champion of Section V, in a quarter final engagement.

The winner earns the right to meet New Kensington, champion of Section I, in the first semi-final match Thursday evening in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

PRE-TOURNEY FAVORITES

Homestead and Charleroi are among the pre-tourney favorites as a result of the brilliant records they compiled to win their sectional championships. Both teams were forced to wade through strong fields to qualify for the eliminations, and their showings in the series so far establish them as two of the best quintets entered in the event.

Tonight's contestants are making their second appearance in the tournament. Homestead made the most impressive showing in the early rounds, Bill Campbell's quintet emerging from its first game with a 51-16 victory over Burgettstown, champion of Section XIV. Charleroi, coached by Steve Stepanian, was pressed to the limit to defeat Swissvale, champion of Section XI, by an 18-17 count. Swissvale previously had put East Pittsburgh, champion of Section XVII, out of the tournament.

Only one-quarter final engagement remains after tonight's contest and it will be run off in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tomorrow night when Braddock, champion of Section VIII, opposes New Castle, champion of Section III.

New Castle is making its first appearance of the tournament in Pittsburgh, having advanced to the present round by defeating Zelienople, Section XVIII champion, in a second round battle at Beaver Falls.

SEMI-FINALS SET

The semi-finals will get under way Thursday night when New Kensington, Section I champion, meets the winner of tonight's game. Friday Ford City, Section VI representative, will engage the New Castle-Braddock winner.

Coach Campbell will start his regular lineup tonight with Sullivan and Stafura at forward, Miller at center and Borgan and Slidders at guard. The Charleroi lineup will present Stevenson and Johnny Reeves at forward, Big Joe Kostolansky at center and Hugus and Robison at guard.

Both teams have been well supported throughout the regular season and in their tournament games to date and indications are that a lively cheering duel will add color to tonight's encounter.

CHILLYSAUCE

—By CHARLES J. DOYLE—

Jewel Ens and George Susce, the Jungaleers from Pittsburgh, are sittin' pretty with their American League brethren, judging from a letter I have just received from Stanley Harris' lieutenant. Ens is in love with his new post and he has a word of praise for the former Schenley High School star who marked his debut with the Tigers by making four hits in succession as the Bengals smeared the San Francisco Seals. George's bat and his snappy work under the bat aided the Detroit team in winning the game.

Ens likes to "ride" the Native Sons about their weather. Anything but sunshine around San Francisco or Los Angeles is called "unusual weather," but it has been Jewel's experience to run into a lot of "unusual" days. In one of his jaunts to the Coast with the Buccos, the weather was so rough no baseball could be played for a week. Apparently the Tigers encountered some of the same "unusual" brand as they reached the Golden Gate city. Jewel writes:

"Dear Chilly—No doubt hearing from me in Tokio will rather make you wish you were not here, but if you were you would have had the glorious weather of Frisco to greet you. We opened our exhibition season yesterday in a California mist, and with diamonds to just correspond there, that was all.

"No doubt you will feel a little sorry when I tell you Navin caught cause in innings and got four out of four; two were doubles and two were singles. If he can hit at all he has very good chances of starting. He has a great scout picnic at his behind the plate and I am going to have him throw that ball around this Harrison George is a great kid all around.

"I like my new position very well. Harris originally is a high-class fellow. I don't think we have permanent possession this year, but if we can keep the gang hustling every day, I am sure everyone will be happy.

"Will be seeing Joe Devine and his Little Pirates pretty soon. So far I have been reading good reports on Mc-Neil, Kenyon and Chapman, and I am sure all those will give Devine their very best. I look for Joe to be right in the running for the coming year, and to have a lot of Frisco people rooting for him.

"JEWEL"

Late this month, the Pirates and Tigers will clash in three games at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles. The Jungaleers were quite cruel to the Buccos a year ago in California. Charley Gehringer and Dale Alexander ran wild, but Gehringer was lost to the club for the greater part of the season and the team foundered. If he can stay at his post this year, things should be different.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: AN INCALCULABLE SHOT—Mr. Budd was one of a crew of five men manning an 18-pound gun of a Canadian field artillery unit on the French front in 1917. With two men on the firing seat firing the gun, a German shell suddenly found its mark in the muzzle of the Canadian gun and exploded, blowing the barrel apart, destroying the sandbag wall and part of the wheels. None of the men was harmed in the least by this extraordinary shot. Mathematical odds of this occurrence are incalculable. TOMOEROW: THE STRAY BRICK HOUSE.

Whether or not Benny Bass, Jewish ring veteran of Philadelphia, remains a big fish in the fistic pond will be determined to the satisfaction of the local followers of the sport when he meets Frankie Bojarski, Erie farmer, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden tonight.

Benny Bass

The pair were to meet several weeks ago, but Bojarski was injured and asked a postponement.

Both are terrific punchers. Bojarski is tall and rangy and a southpaw, featuring a hard left to the body. Bass is short and stocky and inclined to be slow and deliberate in his movements. Benny is the former world featherweight and later junior-lightweight champion. He lost the latter title to Kid Chocolate via a technical knockout in Philadelphia last July.

Frankie Bojarski

MARINO IN SEMI-FINAL

Tony Marino, Duquesne flyweight, and Joey Ross, of Cleveland, subbing for Joey Forchione, of Canton, O., box the eight-round semi-final; Leo Clements, Jeannette heavyweight, and Charley Brodd of McKeesport, the second bout, and Max Elling, the Hill Kingfish, and Ben Smitley, of Uniontown, the opener. The show gets under way at 8:30. Forchione is booked to fight in Canton, O., tonight.

Bass has boxed here twice before, beating Steve Smith and Joey Goodman in battles in the Meyers Bowl. Bojarski also has boxed here a few times and has pleased the fans with his work.

Bojarski weighed 135 pounds and Bass 132 at 3 p. m., today. Ross and Marino both weighed 116. Brodd scaled 184 and Clements 190. Elling weighed 146 and Smitley was late for the scaling.

SCHOOL GOLF LOOP MEETS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The Interscholastic Golf Conference will be started on its second season tonight when officials and representatives gather for their annual meeting at Shady Side Academy. A dinner will be held at 6:30 to start the ball rolling, and President John H. Irwin, of Taylor Allderdice High, will preside.

It is not unlikely that a joint season with the new Interscholastic Tennis Conference also will be held, inasmuch as the officials for the two groups virtually are the same.

President Irwin has announced that any schools wishing to affiliate with the golf conference are invited to have their representatives on hand for the dinner and meeting.

Secretary Johnny Quaill, of Highland, has announced a meeting of the Tri-State Golf Course Superintendents' Association and chairmen of the green committees at district clubs, to be held at the Fort Pitt Hotel at 7 o'clock tonight. O. J. Noer, of Milwaukee, will be the speaker.

Ted Luther, new Valley Heights Golf Club professional, as to take up his duties at the Oakmont Heights course tomorrow. The Youngstown star, erstwhile pro at the Corry, Pa., Country Club, is well pepped up and ready for a big season.

Hafey Submits New Terms to Cardinals

ST. LOUIS, March 14.—(AP.)—Chick Hafey, holdout slugger of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, has asked the club for a one-year contract at $17,000, after failing in a bigger demand.

"Club offers $13,000 and refuses to negotiate further," Hafey wired the St. Louis Post-Dispatch from his home at Berkeley, Cal. "Have asked $17,500 for two years. Submitting new proposition, $17,000 for one year. Working out regularly. In good condition. Ready to play. Refuse to leave California until terms agreed upon."

SPORT VIGNETTES

While pursuing his duties as athletic director and football coach of Duquesne University, Elmer Layden, one of the celebrated Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, is not losing sight of his ultimate goal, which is the practice of law . . . Discussing the second proffer of the head coaching berth of the University of Iowa, in the Western Conference, which finally has settled upon the shoulders of Ossie Solem, of Drake, Layden said he was well satisfied with his position here and the possibilities at Iowa would have to be great before he would consider making a change . . . The Iowa position requires a stated period of teaching, in addition to coaching, and Layden does not feel inclined toward getting into that groove, preferring to have time available to follow a law career, for which he has been preparing across the years.

Elmer Layden

A serious-minded contender for an Olympic team assignment is young Michael Kish, of Port Vue. Marathon runner of note, who is preparing now to compete in the trials at Boston and in Baltimore, on April 19 and May 14, respectively . . . The winner of each of these grinds, over the full Olympic distance of 26 miles, 385 yards, as well as the winner of a trial at Los Angeles, will qualify for the team, with the runner-up at Los Angeles being held in reserve as an alternate . . . Back in 1928, Kish, unheralded and unsung, finished ninth in a trial at Detroit, a high position for a novice, which is what Kish was at the time . . . Kish first attracted attention in athletics as a strong man . . . He is employed as a catcher in the McKeesport tin plant, and his training in addition to this hard work consists of running and bicycle riding . . . He has been engaged to work as a model for th art classes at Carnegie Tech next fall because of his fine physique . . . He is 25 years old . . . Mike is paying his own expenses to the Boston Marathon and has his heart set on winning, if it is within his ability.

Johnny Jadick, junior-welterweight champion, has been offered a series of bouts in London, Dublin and Paris this spring and may make the trip over there . . . One of his opponents is to be Al Foreman, the British champion . . . Jack Dempsey is to fight King Levinsky again in a big outdoor bout in Chicago this summer, if all goes well until then . . . Primo Carnera may be another Dempsey foe during the warm months . . . Believe it or not, but Harry Kiaas, the demon announcer, is getting some good workouts these days spieling the names of the foreign wrestlers appearing on the cards at Motor Square Garden . . . Battling Gizzy registered another big hit in repeating an earlier victory over Cowboy Eddie Anderson in Flint, Mich., last week, three nights after he defeated Eddie Lord at Motor Square Garden, and they are boosting him as a contender for Tony Canzoneri's lightweight title in a bout in one of the Michigan rings this summer.

Mose Butch's recent loss of winning form has cost him his postponed match with Al Brown, the world bantamweight champion, at Motor Square Garden, with Brown now ready to fight again . . . Mose was far off his best stride in losing to Jimmy Thomas and Jackie Wilson, local Negro youngsters, and his manager, Jack London, is seeking to learn the cause thereof.

What with Buck McTernan about ready to resume work, Johnny Natell, the lefty of Jack Hill, and Harry Harris, that dancing and fighting Joe West mingling at the Monte Carlo Wednesday night, and Jack Trotter, Tommy Moore, Lee Rark, Mickey Bonelli and others on the scene, a lot of rapid fisticuffs in the division may be expected during the next few months.

TOLEDO, March 14.—(INS.)—Pronounced by his physicians as "greatly improved," Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion, who is ill with an attack of influenza, will attempt to keep his boxing engagement at Clarksburg, W. Va., Wednesday night, he revealed today.

T PIRATES OPPOSE MISSIONS; SIMAS RELEASED

VAUGHN STARS AS CORSAIRS WIN, LOSE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Manager Gibson was well satisfied with the manner in which his Pittsburgh Pirates handled themselves in their initial test of the season against Oakland in a twin bill yesterday.

VAUGHN, FRENCH START

The Buccos, in breaking even with the Pacific Coast League team yesterday, displayed a well-balanced outfit that displayed sterling qualities in every department of play. The Bucs won the first tilt, 3-1, but lost the afternoon game, 5-1.

The actions of Floyd Vaughn, recruit shortstop, who played in place of Tommy Thevenow, and Bill Harris and Larry French, pitchers, was particularly pleasing to the Corsair skipper.

Vaughn excelled in both hitting and fielding, and on several occasions he received ovations when he dashed back of second to grab up a grounder and beat the runner to the plate.

Harris and French hurled exceptional ball in the morning game, and it might be said that these two were the most important factors in turning in the Pirate victory. Harris held the Oaklanders to three hits over four innings, while French limited the Oaks to two for the remainder of the game. French appeared to be in mid-summer form, and had plenty of stuff on the ball, which was increased a thousandfold in value by the fact that Larry was in control of practically every pitch.

GIBBY USES SUBS

Pirate pitchers were pummelled for 11 hits in the afternoon fray, but despite this, it was not until late in the game that the home team was able to push across its five points. A bad pounding ball, which jumped over Dugas' head as he waited for it, allowed them to add a couple of runs to their score.

Manager Gibson made free use of his substitutes in both games, rushing his second-stringers in after the fourth inning was completed.

Laughter! Tears!

Jackets, Indians Both Claim Baxter

Charles S. King, president of the International Hockey League, this week will answer the question of whether Goalie Gordon (Sonny Boy) Baxter is to be with the Pittsburgh or Cleveland team next season.

Cleveland contends that Baxter was signed to an Indian contract, and that he only was loaned to Pittsburgh. The local hockey chiefs say Baxter is a free agent, and that Cleveland cannot block his signing with the Jackets.

Baxter says that he signed no Cleveland contract, that the Indians owe him back salary, that he likes the treatment accorded him here and that he probably will sign with Pittsburgh for the 1932-33 race in the event that President King rules him a free agent.

TITANS AT TOP OF DISTRICT FLOOR HEAP

By JESS CARVER

The college basketball campaign is over and done and Westminster rules the roost. By percentage, certainly, and by virtue of triumphs scored at the expense of other leading college fives of the section.

The Titans captured 16 out of 18 games. Geneva won 17 and lost 6. Allegheny, after a brave start of 11 consecutive victories, faltered a little and won 14 out of 19; Duquesne won 14 out of 20, and Carnegie Tech won 17 out of 26.

Pitt's noble Panthers were all set for a .500 percentage standing until they met Dutch Hermann and his aroused Penn State Lions Saturday night. They blew the final game of the season and wound up with 14 games won and 16 lost for a percentage below the 50-50 mark.

HERMANN SERVES WELL

It was particularly pleasurable to the admirers of Dutch Hermann to see his team beat Pitt in the season's finale. The good Dutchman is not for long at Penn State. Your correspondent is of the opinion that Saturday night's game was just about Dutch's last as head coach at State. I am of the opinion that the veteran court mentor is about ready to give up the job at State College. He has served his school nobly, has done a great job at handling first-year material and has been a great coach and a true gentleman throughout.

There have been more than a dozen exceptional basketball players performed in Pittsburgh this season. Heading the list is Don Van Ackeren of Creighton University. Then comes Krause of Notre Dame, Carolan of Georgetown, O'Brien of Temple and diminutive Freddie Linz of New York University.

This quintet easily was the most spectacular to show its wares before a Pittsburgh audience this season. Linz the almost dwarf-like N. Y. U. forward, popped them from all angles against both Tech and Pitt, dropping in five field goals each evening against the local heroes.

VAN ACKEREN HOT

There is no doubt in the mind of this correspondent but that Van Ackeren was the most polished and finished basketball player to perform before a Steel City audience. The Creighton captain went like a flash against an aroused Pitt team. He shot field goals from well nigh impossible angles, and played a stellar floor game.

The biggest upset of the 1931-32 season occurred when Grove City defeated Westminster at Grove City early in the season. The most spectacular game was staged at Beaver Falls, when Geneva defeated Duquesne in a sensational and hotly-contested extra period battle late in the campaign. This defeat so unnerved the Dukes that they dropped the final contest of the year to Carnegie Tech, thereby losing cast among the experts when it came to ranking the teams of the district for the season.

TITANS LEAD

After all is said and done the triumph of Dutch Hermann's Nittany Lions over Pitt provided a fitting climax to the season. Pittsburgh likes Dutch Hermann, and even though he had not beaten Pitt since 1927, the boys were pulling for he and his team Saturday night. It was one game that Dr. Carlson did not object to losing. The standing of the district teams follows:

BABE DECLINES CONTRACT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth failed today to reach an agreement with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, on salary terms for this season. The Babe again rejected the proposal for a one-year contract at $70,000, and countered with a demand for the same salary he has been getting, $80,000.

The Babe and the Colonel talked for a half hour in the clubhouse at Huggins Field after the Yanks finished their morning workout.

"About all I can say is we may be a little warmer," Col. Ruppert told newspapermen. "But we have not yet reached any basis for agreement. We will think it over and possibly get together again tomorrow morning."

MEETING FRIENDLY

The meeting appeared to be on an extremely friendly basis but when pressed as to the possibility of compromise Ruth made it clear he had not receded from his original desires, either to take the $70,000 on a two-year basis, or $80,000 for one more season.

NO TWO-YEAR CONTRACT

"We cannot consider signing him for two years, unless," he added, with a laugh, "the Babe would take $25,000 a year."

Forbes

Financial Gain Hasn't Spread to Industry

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS have notably improved. Europe reports progress towards rehabilitation. The general price level at home holds fairly well. Employment news contains at least a few cheerful items. Bank failures are now rare.

But definite quickening or expansion in business is not yet clearly visible.

BE PREPARED for very disconcerting announcements concerning tax collections this week. The shrinkage in individual income payments is sure to prove severe beyond all expectations. The drop in payments by corporations will also be drastic.

Happily, the prospect is that Congress will speedily agree to new tax levies sufficient to reassure even the most timid that United States government obligations will remain absolutely unimpaired. Every tax is a nuisance. The prospective levies, by and large, are less disturbing than many feared. The sales tax is the mainstay of the revenue-raising program. This tax has the fundamental merit of being extremely broadly based.

THE TREND in monetary conditions should shortly have a beneficial effect upon business. Interest rates have eased. The Federal Reserve banks are following an aggressive easy money policy. Commercial banks have now the means for granting credit less stingily. Our stock of gold actually increased last week. Hoarded cash is reappearing in gratifying volume.

Abroad, more comfortable banking conditions are developing. The Bank of England lowered its rate from 5 to 4 per cent and sterling enjoyed a phenomenal rise, testifying to a renewed faith in Britain's financial stability.

THE STOCK MARKET, after its very substantial advance, has moved irregularly. This is interpreted as more salutary than would have been an uninterrupted ascent.

Domestic bonds of all varieties have registered rather substantial gains. Foreign bonds have also crept up.

Expansion of $57,000,000 in brokers' loans suggests widening public interest. The amount borrowed by brokers' customers is still, however, phenomenally small.

New York Stock Exchange members are now sending requests to customers to sign agreements that their stocks may be lent to short sellers. After this month, such specific permission becomes necessary. Wall street is quite sure that brokers will devise some scheme to enable short selling to continue.

The highest-ups in the street are more concerned about what Washington may reveal than about any threatened strangling of short selling. It now looks as if the probe may be considerably delayed, because of the sharp controversy certain to arise over the Glass bank bill.

THE RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION is rendering yeoman service to banks and to railroads. Confidence in banks has been restored in marked degree. Assistance to railroads is being granted not always on the scale requested but nevertheless in a very useful way. Chief interest centers in the attitude to be adopted towards the Pennsylvania's application for funds to carry on important capital expenditures for electrification and such like constructive purposes.

No increase in railway freight is recorded. Nor has the wage reduction thus far brought market betterment in net earnings.

TRADE AND INDUSTRIAL news still is decidedly mixed. Ordering of steel has declined—perhaps only delayed. The price outlook is called better. The motor industry blames the delay in the arrival of the new Ford products for a disappointing letup in sales. A new agreement to curtail copper production to 20 per cent may or may not help that distressed industry. Some commodities have sunk to new depths, notably raw sugar, but others have advanced slightly.

HOPEFULNESS GROWS that the distinctly better banking and credit conditions will spread to industry and commerce in coming months.

WESTINGHOUSE SHOWS LOSS

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP.)—In line with quieter business which affected the company particularly keenly in the final quarter, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company suffered a loss of $3,655,659 in 1931 against a net income the year before of $11,881,705.

Kreuger's Loans Here Less Than $9,000,000

NEW YORK, March 14.—Lee Higginson & Co., investment bankers, have received the following dispatch from Stockholm:

"It is learned from reliable sources that the amount of loans in the United States of Swedish Match Company, International Match Company and Kreuger and Toll has been greatly exaggerated. The total of all bank loans and acceptances of these companies in the United States is less than $9,000,000, which amount is divided among various banks."

Steel Report Explains Two Dividend Reductions Made During This Year

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE TWO REDUCTIONS in the dividend rate of the United States Steel Corporation are readily explicable when the current condition of the industry is taken into consideration and a careful examination is made of the organization's financial position.

The complete annual report, released today, shows the condition of United States Steel at the close of 1931. It makes possible a study of the reduction in working capital which took place last year and provides a basis for estimating the effect of dividend payments on working capital in the present year.

The payment of regular dividends on $360,281,100 of 7 per cent preferred stock requires $25,219,677, a year. The continuation of dividends on the old basis of $7 on the common stock would have required $60,922,764 a year. Total dividend payments on both classes of steels on a pre-depression basis would have required an outlay of $86,142,441.

In 1931 the corporation reported net income of $13,038,140. But this was after taking account of $19,341,659 of special income which consisted principally of profits from the sale of properties in 1931. Without taking this special income into consideration, the corporation would have shown an actual loss from operations in 1931.

Working Capital Reduced During Year Just Ended

All of the charges against income did not represent actual outlay of cash. Provisions for depreciation, depletion, amortization and obsolescence amounted to $47,317,894. After paying dividends on both classes of stock, the corporation came to the end of 1931 with a deficit of $49,165,485. While reserves were not far below this net deficit, the necessity for making large expenditures for modernization of plants resulted in an actual reduction in working capital.

Dividend Continuation Would Reduce Cash

WHILE UNITED STATES Steel was in a strong current financial position at the close of 1931, it would not take a long period of payment of unearned dividends to seriously reduce available cash.

The company would have reported a loss in 1931, if it were not for special income from the sale of properties. The pressing need to keep plants in a modern condition usually absorbs more than the reserves for depreciation and depletion.

Thus the payment of unearned dividends would be a direct charge on cash and investments. At the close of 1931, the total of these items amounted to $150,806,329. This was $47,000,695 less than at the end of the previous year.

Annual dividends on a pre-depression basis of $7 a share on the preferred and common, amounting to $86,141,441, would have seriously impaired working capital if we assume that 1932 income results will be no better than those of 1931, and there are good reasons to assume that they will be even less satisfactory.

Even on the present dividend basis of $2 a share annually for

STOCK MARKET TAKES SHARP DECLINE

Numerous Net Losses of 3 to 6 Points Appear At Close; Undertone Weak

NEW YORK, March 14—(AP.)—The New York stock market slumped sharply in the late trading today, after the closing of foreign markets. Net losses of 3 to more than 6 points were numerous at the close. The list closed with a distinctly weak tone. Sales were around 2,000,000 shares.

The list soon recovered from the unsettlement at the opening as result of feverish selling of the Kreuger issues but weakened emphatically in the late afternoon, as internationally held rail issues dipped sharply. Part of the selling was believed to come from abroad. Announcement of the suicide of George Eastman, only two days after the Kreuger suicide, was a shock in the final dealings. Eastman Kodak broke 8 points, then recovered partly.

Kreuger & Toll closed at 2⅛, off 2⅞. International Match preferred was off 5, net. Several issues closed fractionally above the bottom. United States Steel was off 2e after getting down about 3. Issues off about 3 to 4 included Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Case and American Telephone. The Baltimore and Ohio issues were weak, the preferred reaching a new low.

The large-scale liquidation of Kreuger & Toll, brokers pointed out, reflected the fact that the New York market appeared to be the only one of the several world markets in which the issue is traded, able to absorb the large-scale selling. The opening of 150,000 shares at 1⅞ was not agreed until an hour after the opening gong, and in point of shares, it was the largest opening in any issue in the history of the stock exchange.

The large plurality polled by President Von Hindenburg in the German elections was regarded as constructive in Wall street, but was somewhat overshadowed by the Kreuger affair.

Trade and business reports still failed to provide stimulus. The publication, Steel, said ingot output was virtually unchanged, but producers look for a "break" shortly. United States Steel's pamphlet report pointed out that 1931 production was so far under the average of the past 10 years that pent up demand should eventually begin to be felt.

BOND MARKET SELLS OFF

NEW YORK, March 14—The selling wave in the bond market gained momentum as trading approached the end of the session and while United States Treasury and the major European and continental issues resisted pressure, all classes of domestic corporation bonds showed weakness, and several broke through the year's previous low prices. Low-priced rails were especially weak.

Sugar Price Cut By Eastern Refiners

NEW YORK, March 14.—Several refiners have reduced the price of refined sugar 15 points to 4 cents a pound. This is the first change in the price of refined for several weeks and is an adjustment to the persistent downward trend of raw sugar prices during the past fortnight.

Futures opened at advances of 1 to 2 points on covering and buying by trade interests. Offerings were comparatively light. Houses with Cuban connections supplied the early demand, and following the call the market became quieter, with operators apparently inclined to limit fresh commitments and await developments at tomorrow's Paris conference on crop restriction.

February Cotton Sales Increased

NEW YORK, March 14.—Sales of carded cotton cloths in February amounted to 100⅓ per cent of the month's production, according to the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants covering more than 300 classifications of carded cotton cloths and representing the major portion of the production of these fabrics in the United States. Production for the four-weeks' period amounted to 244,342,000 yards, or an average weekly rate of 61,086,000 yards.

Thompson Officers Reach Agreement

CHICAGO, March 14.—John R. Thompson, Jr., president of John R. Thompson Company, and other officials of the company headed by Charles A. McCulloch, chairman of the board, have composed differences as to operating policy and control of the management. As a result, incumbent directors and officers of the company will be named for posts at the annual meeting tomorrow.

Goodyear Denied Patent Review

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The United States Supreme Court today denied the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company a review of a lower court decision in favor of Overman Cushion Tire Company, Inc., in a dispute over the cushion tire patent owned by the latter.

BUYERS' GUIDE AND BUSINESS ACTIVITIES BULLETIN

MARKETS NEW PRODUCT FOR HOMES

Long Chemical Research Results In Introduction Of New Washing Fluid

Many Pittsburghers have become acquainted with a new product which has been on sale at Father Cox's "shanty-town" settlement as well as various stores throughout the city.

A little more than a year ago, a group of Pittsburgh engineers, businessmen, chemists and salesmen formed a small company at 2824 Penn avenue to market a locally manufactured washing fluid for that most critical of buyers, the American housewife.

An extensive survey revealed that many washing powders and fluids contained chloride of lime and other chemicals which were eventually harmful to fabrics. Housewives complained that repeated rinsings were required to wash out chemicals from clothes.

Seeking to eliminate these and other handicaps of the average washing fluid, these men experimented until they found a liquid which is not only a non-explosive non-inflamatory bleach but a disinfectant, deoderant, germ killer and stain remover.

Dawn-Glo, it is claimed, whitens and removes stains from clothes, enamel, porcelain and crockery. It neutralizes food odors in refrigerators and food containers, bleaches discolored drainboards and stained woodwork; removes mildew and iron-scorched spots from linen and makes glass and crystal shine.

In spite of unfavorable business conditions during the past year, it has become necessary for this young company to seek larger quarters, officials say. A reorganized personnel will conduct business in the Yost Building, Bingham and South Twelfth streets, South Side, after April 1.

Pleads Guilty to Bucket Shop Charge

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Augustine C. Kelly, who was president of A. C. Kelly & Co., Broadway brokers, which failed last April, with losses of more than $1,000,000 to customers, pleaded guilty today to an indictment charging that he conducted a bucket shop. He will be sentenced March 28.

Famous Opera Singer Offers To Take Lily Lou To Europe

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"There's no use planning your life," Lily Lou thought afterward. "Things just happen to you, or they don't happen. Nothing used to happen to me, and now everything does."

It had been an ordinary morning. Nothing to set it aside from other mornings except that Maxine had a cold in her head, and was in bad temper, and Mrs. Manchester spilled the cream and scolded Sadie for it.

She had looked with distaste at her reflection in the mirror as she pulled on her hat, and prepared to leave for Gwin's studio. Last night's secret tears hadn't improved her appearance. She thought she looked ill and rather sullen.

Gwin was in a vile humor. The throaty contralto who sang "Du Bist die Ruh" left in tears. He even found fault with the Russian soprano's French, though he had said repeatedly that her accent was perfect.

Two book agents called, and he almost kicked them out. When, a moment later, the door opened again, Lily Lou looked up in some alarm. She was afraid it was the over-brave book agent again.

A NOTED SINGER

It was no book agent. It was Nita Nahlman.

Older, but the same unforgetable Nahlman who sang Carmen in Lily Lou's first visit to the opera in San Francisco, nearly 11 years ago. Even then she was fat, and now she was enormous, but not unpleasantly so. She had been dark in those days, or Lily Lou had seen her pictured oftenest in dark wigs. She was delicately—but not too delicately—hennaed now, with her bright blue eyes looking bluer than they really were because of blue mascara and blue shadows pencilled in.

She was dressed in a sable coat. The largest orchids Lily Lou had ever seen bobbed on her shoulder. In her ears pendant diamonds, like clear, enormous drops of water hung, reflecting beams of light.

Off came her gloves, revealing lovely, young-looking hands, the fingers banked with jewels. Diamond and emerald bracelets clattered stiffly on her wrists. She gave a little cry of rapture, and holding out both arms, rushed on Gwin.

Lily Lou found out afterward that she had never cared very much about Gwin, they had never been very good friends. This was just the Nahlman personality—she either kissed you on both cheeks, or didn't speak at all.

MAGNETIC PERSONALITY

Lily Lou went off to a corner near the windows, to be out of the way, but Nita Nahlman was too much the actress to neglect even such an insignificant bit of audience as the accompanist. She laughed, she flashed, she shook and she sparkled. Lily Lou couldn't resist the magnetism of the woman. She couldn't keep her eyes off of her. The found herself turning, all a-sparkle herself, as the big woman rattled on about this one and that one—great figures in the musical world—but just "poor darling," "old cat," or "another tin whistle" to Nahlman.

Gwin decided to be gracious. "Nita, you must let me present my accompanist. This will be the biggest day of her life. Come over here, Lily. You're going to meet the great Nita Nahlman—"

Lily Lou came forward, a little shy, her cheeks flushed and Nahlman took her hand, and smiled down at her from her superior height and sighed, half laughing. "Oh, to be so young again! Dwight—I'm going to weep!"

"Oh, to be great enough to transcend first youth, first beauty!" Gwin smiled back.

"Oh, yes, I am still beautiful enough on the stage. They still come when Nahlman sings."

"Still come! I should say so. I couldn't even get standing room your last night of Tosca."

INVITED TO SING

"What! You didn't hear me! But the whole of New York was there. How stupid of you . . . Why didn't you call me? Why, you read what they said! Such applause. Never in all my life have I sung it like that night. It was never equaled. And you weren't there. Why not? A woman, you sly one!" She began poking him playfully with a jeweled fore-finger. "And the the poor wife still at home, complaining? You men—all alike. How is your wife? Well? Any more babies? What, only two?"

Lily Lou would have been forgotten, if Dwight had not had reason of his own for changing the conversation.

He took her arm now, pushed her toward Nahlman. "Stop badgering an innocent man, Nita. Now you're here sit down for five minutes. See what you think of my latest."

"Oh, she sings—that one?"

Nahlman looked at Lily Lou, with something like interest in her heavy-lidded eyes. She glanced at the small clock on a seventeenth century chest. "Yes, but in five minutes I must go. I said Wednesday. I have three performances in Paris, then my classes for two months, and a concert series in England. My classes are so full! It will be wonderful. Bigger than ever, my success—"

"You're always wonderful, and your successes are constantly bigger." Gwin said laughing. "But if you have only five minutes—"

"Of course!" She sank onto a sofa, waved toward the tongue-tied Lily Lou. "Sing something, my dear."

NOT IN HUMOR

Gwin went to the piano. He drummed idly a moment. Lily Lou could feel her scalp twitching, each separate hair rising by itself.

A dream of a lifetime, to be heard one day by Nita Nahlman—but not now—not today, after a sleepless night—

Gwin had begun the familiar music of Mignon . . . "Connaistu le pays" . . . He had said that it was her best number, that if she ever learned enough French and Italian to make an opera debut, that would be her best choice . . . Mignon . . .

She opened her mouth. "I can't—I can't—"

That was what she thought she was going to say. But instead she found her voice going into the aria . . . Gwin was playing, she dared not stop. She knew she had sung better before, knew that Gwin was ashamed of her, that Nahlman was bored. She didn't want to do it brilliantly . . . just to get through it. To get through it somehow, and then crawl away into a corner, and cry and cry . . .

A SURPRISING OFFER

The tears came near the surface of her voice, but it rose, sweet and strong above them. In a wave of homesickness, of despair, of longing, she finished, and stood, her hands still clasped, afraid to look at Gwin, afraid to look at Mme. Nahlman.

"I've just had her three months. She was practically untrained when she came to me," Gwin said over his shoulder. He began the waiting song from Butterfly—another of the things that suited her, he thought.

Without looking at Nahlman Lily Lou sang it, too. Sang it better than she had the first aria.

He began the first bars of the Shadow Song.

Madame Nahlman stood up. "I haven't time now, Gwin. I must go."

Of course. She hadn't time. Lily Lou had not expected anything else. She just stood, waiting, because she didn't know what else to do. Does one thank an artist for listening? She looked appealingly at Gwin. She didn't know.

Madame Nahlman was speaking again.

"Why can't I take her with me?" she asked.

"Tff! Your accompanist. What do I care? She'll go far, that girl. We leave Wednesday. The Aquitania. You will come, my dear?"

Lily Lou balanced on her heels. She tried to take in what was happening. Nita Nahlman talking about taking her to Europe . . . taking her . . . taking HER . . .

ALL IN A DAY — By MARK HELLINGER

The Cheat

THE ROMANCE started on the subway, which is as good a place as any, I suppose, to fall in love. As Howard Lanin can tell you, Mr. Jones was not a particularly ardent type of gentleman. As a matter of fact, one look at him would convince you that ledgers were far more important in his life than love.

But the girl—ah, that was a different story. A cute-looking monkey with sparkling eyes, she should have been riding in a Rolls instead of a subway car. But if she had been, she wouldn't have met Mr. Jones. And, much more important, I wouldn't have had any story.

What prompted her to give Mr. Jones the naughty eye is one of those mysteries that I never attempt to explain. Sufficient to relate that she gave it to him. And even though the poor man squirmed nervously in his seat, he was compelled to return the glance.

Thus, before Mr. Jones quite realized what had happened, he was standing on the platform and talking to the little lady. Her name, she said, was Mrs. Smith—and her husband didn't understand her.

"The minute I looked at you in that car," said Mrs. Smith, "I knew that you were the kind of man a woman could trust. Did anyone ever tell you that before?"

Mr. Jones gulped.

"Well," he replied hesitantly, "my mother always told me that. Of course, I'm such a busy man that I don't have time to engage in conversation with too many females. You know what I mean?"

"Sure I do, honey," she asserted sweetly. "But I'd like to make things a little different. A man who does a lot of work always needs a little relaxation. I wish I knew you better."

Whereupon Mr. Jones said a very daring thing.

"I wish," he muttered nervously, "I wish I knew you better, too."

Well, as sometimes happens, one word led to another. And before Mr. Jones said goodby to her they had arranged an appointment for the following night. Her husband, it seemed, worked at nights. It would be a very simple matter for Mr. Jones to visit her between certain hours, and there would never be any danger attached to it.

The lady was absolutely positive.

"Don't you worry, dear," she returned. "If I tell you everything will be okay, you can take my word for it. I'll be waiting for you tomorrow night. Goodnight, you sweet man."

"Goodnight, you—you nice thing," said Mr. Jones . . .

For the next 24 hours, Mr. Jones struggled with his soul. If there hadn't been any danger in connection with the rendezvous he probably wouldn't have struggled so hard. But the thought of a husband who might be very muscular disturbed him to a great degree.

He kept telling himself that he wasn't going to see that woman. He pointed out to his own satisfaction that it would be a very wrong thing to do. He assured himself that he would be making one of the biggest mistakes of his life. He did all those things—and then he put on his other suit and went anyhow.

Mrs. Smith proved to be a charming hostess. She had several bottles of beer on ice, and some excellent liverwurst sandwiches upon the table. So you can see, my friends, that she had left nothing undone.

But Mr. Jones was strangely worried. Even though the little lady placed a hand on his and gazed fondly into his eyes as she chewed on a bit of liverwurst, the man couldn't seem to react. He leaped to his feet whenever a door closed. The slightest noise brought an unhealthy pallor to his face. In other and simpler words, he was a badly frightened lover.

Mrs. Smith tried to ease matters.

"Please stop being so worried," she requested. "I told you that you would be safe, and you are. And, if it will make you feel any easier, I might tell you that my husband and I have an arrangement. Whenever he comes home—no matter what time it is—he always gives the downstairs bell a ring to let me know he's here.

"He's never failed to do that, and there's no reason why he should start now. So you see that there isn't the slightest chance of anything going wrong. Even if he did ring the bell—which he won't—you'd still have plenty of time to get out the back way."

The man swallowed hard.

"You're sure about that?" he murmured.

Mrs. Smith placed an arm around his shoulders.

"Don't lose your nerve," she muttered. "Be a man. Stay in here and keep out of sight. I'll get you out later."

Mr. Jones backed himself into a corner and tried his best to hide behind a mop. Meanwhile, outside, he heard voices. Voices that grew louder.

"You can't fool me, you cheat," he heard a man cry. "You've got a lover in here some place. You'd better bring him out before I find him myself. Where is he, I say?"

Poor Mr. Jones. He was shaking as though he were in the last stages of the palsy.

"Oh, my," he kept muttering to himself. "Her husband will kill me. I knew I shouldn't have come. Oh, my."

The door was suddenl, flung open and a man stepped in. A huge man who looked more like a prizefighter than anything else. He saw Mr. Jones.

"So," he growled, "there you are, eh? Well, come on out here where I can get a look at you."

He placed one of those large paws on Mr. Jones's shoulder and tossed the poor man into the living room. Then he strolled in after him. Mr. Jones looked up at him with tears in his eyes.

"Please, mister," he pleaded. "I really didn't come here to violate your home. I met Mrs. Smith on the subway and—"

The other man stopped him with a motion.

"You don't have to tell me anything at all, buddy," were his rather astounding words. "If you think I blame you in any way, you've got another think coming. I blame the woman in these cases. Any guy in the world will fall for a dame, and you're no exception.

"She's the one that's no good. This isn't the first time I've caught her. Because she's a cheat. That's what she is—a cheat.

"She's cheating you. She's cheating herself. She's cheating me, too. And, though he doesn't know it, she's even cheating her husband!" . . .

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS -:- Junior Komic Club

Seventeen youngsters all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club are the envy of their schoolmates today, with the dandy white woolly sweater with the Junior Komic Club emblem on it which they won Saturday for the best colored "Popeye" cut-out which appeared a week ago yesterday in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Seventeen more of these sweaters will be awarded next Saturday to members of the Junior Komic Club who sent in the "Jiggs" cut-out, colored, which appeared in yesterday's Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

At the Harris (Downtown) Saturday the members elected a new set of officers.

The office of the Grand Jester went to a little fellow named Joe Morwood. Joe was one of the first boys to join the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club when it was organized months ago, and Manager William Pierce reports that Joe has an attendance record hard to beat.

Joe Morwood, the new Grand Jester of the Harris (Downtown), has never missed a meeting of the club. That's certainly a fine record. Along with Joe, the members elected the following to the board of governors, Mary De Petro, Henry Hanna, Rita Farren, William Shollito, Davio Del Mastro, these youngsters will serve at the next four meetings.

The dancing school which Manger Roberts, of the Enright (East Liberty) Chapter, inaugurated Saturday, under the direction of Dolly Fritz, found many of the youngsters lined up long before the doors opened to enroll. Last year, this school had a class well over 800 pupils. It teaches the youngsters all kinds of dancing, from tap to the more difficult adagio. This is just one of the many features of the Enright Chapter. Here are some of the members who attended the meeting Saturday: Harry Day (6), Margaret Pattinson (13), Jean McDermott (45), Ruth O'Connor (78), Francis Carney (93), Margaret Reed (110), Mary Fox (138), Ruth Potter (156), William Sharron (172), Dick Werner (200), John Oliver (210), Norma Williams (244), Bud Miller (365), Jack Fitzgerald (446), Thelma Hill (505), Mildred Duncan (564), Dorothy Packer (586), Betty Lawson (638), George Firth (710), Margaret Walsh (780).

Impressive Sponsors

The American Legion and the Public Are Fortunate in The Employment Drive Leadership.

The American Legion is to be congratulated on the acceptance by Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Company, of the state chairmanship in its campaign to find permanent jobs for 1,000,000 unemployed men and women.

Mr. Weir is an outstanding leader in American industry. It is no secret that he was seriously considered for the presidency of the United States Steel Corporation.

The names of other local sponsors of the Legion's drive are also impressive. They include Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, H. B. Rust, president of the Koppers company; John B. Tonkin, president of the Peoples Gas Company; A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and Senator David A. Reed.

The public is fortunate in having gained the co-operation of these captains of industry.

But it is not to be forgotten that not only large employers of labor, but also individual householders are expected to help in the drive. The householders can help by giving part time jobs to the men and women whom the Legion is trying to help—jobs around the home, cleaning jobs, repairing jobs, painting jobs and the like.

A Ridiculous Excuse

Cost of Advertising Traffic Ordinance Could Be Collected Quickly by Elimination of "Tag-Fixing."

The excuse offered for the failure of Council to enact the codified traffic ordinance—that it would cost about $1,000 to advertise the ordinance, as required by law—is about the most ridiculous that could be submitted.

The ordinance does away with "tag-fixing"—deprives Councilmen and others with political influence of the privilege of granting their friends immunity from prosecution for violation of traffic regulations.

With "tag-fixing" eliminated enough fines could be collected in a short time for illegal parking to pay for advertising the ordinance.

An attorney had a squabble with the police last week. To "get even" with him they resurrected "tags" against him which previously had been ignored. His "tags" alone, according to the police, called for fines totaling $441.

It is asserted that in one month two years ago 27,000 "tags"—that is, summons to appear in Traffic Court to answer for violations of the automobile regulations—were issued by the police, and that there was a response to only 9,000.

At that rate the elimination of "tag-fixing" might bring in enough fines in two or three days to pay for the advertising.

Kline Trial Postponed

Public Opinion Will Uphold Judge Finletter's Course in View of the Embracery Charges.

The Butler County grand jury which has been investigating the alleged conspiracy to "fix" the jury which was to have tried Mayor Charles H. Kline makes shocking charges.

It finds "there has been a widespread and general effort to influence and corrupt members of the petit jury" and recommends the indictment of eight persons, among whom are a clergyman and a woman.

It declares further that it has been unable to identify all the guilty parties.

Judge Thomas D. Finletter did perfectly right under the circumstances in postponing the Kline trial until May. It is disappointing that this important case is to remain undetermined for two more months, but public opinion will uphold the action of the court.

Unemployment Is a Defy To Congress and Country

One of the most impressive declarations in favor of a prosperity loan to finance a vast program of public works and provide employment to the unemployed has come from the American Federation of Labor.

Speaking as the legislative representative of that national organization, at a hearing before the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, Edward F. McGrady said that "the cost to the government of unemployment will far exceed eventually the cost of creating employment by public works."

Furthermore, in the absence of such a powerful stimulus to industry, commerce and labor as the financing of a vast program of public works would provide, this witness warned the committee that it could not look for any marked increase in employment this year or next.

"We predict," he added, "that you will have just as much suffering next winter as you have this winter unless the federal government takes the initiative to create work for the people."

It is estimated that this prosperity loan program would start public works in all parts of the country that would soon give jobs to one million five hundred thousand of the unemployed directly.

Twice that number would be given work indirectly in the industries supplying materials and in the production of those consumers whose purchasing power would be quickly restored.

Senator La Follette is entitled to the thanks of the public for putting in legislative form this prosperity loan proposal.

And Senator La Follette puts the case most convincingly for this practical solution of our unemployment problem when he says:

"A well-balanced public works program of this size will stimulate production all along the line, and will bring about the recovery of commodity prices from the disastrously low levels to which they have fallen.

"The circulation through the channels of consumption and production of the money expended directly will multiply several times the effect of the expenditures made in accordance with this emergency public works bill."

And the solution of this national and humane problem of unemployment is the paramount task of the present Congress and a challenge to every Senator and Representative in Congress.

Selected Sales Tax Held Indispensable

By B. C. FORBES

A WELL-SELECTED sales tax, long advocated by William Randolph Hearst and long ignored by our lawmakers, is now hailed as indispensable to the solution of the grave financial problems created by years of governmental extravagance and incompetency.

No longer can multiplying tax demands be met simply by "soaking the rich." Experience has proved conclusively that the rich can hatch ways and means of escaping when efforts are made to impose impossibly heavy levies on them.

Confiscatory taxes—or taxes which the rich regard as confiscatory—always prove abortive.

HOW imperative the need has become for spreading taxation will be grasped by digesting these staggering facts.

Each business day of the year $46,000,000 must be handed over by taxpayers to keep our federal, state and local governments going.

This appalling exaction of $14,000,000,000 a year means that every man, woman and child in the United States must, on the average, hand over $110 to tax-gatherers.

This sum exceeds by two thousand million dollars the gross farm value of the nation's total agricultural production even in the boom year of 1929.

It almost equals the total salaries and wages paid in the same boom year to 10,187,000 executives and employes of over 210,000 manufacturing establishments in the United States.

Every man, woman and child must work one full day each week to meet taxes.

Only a few years ago one out of every 22 persons gainfully employed was on the public payroll, a tax eater.

Today it is one in every 11 and, if the trend be not checked, in a little over 20 years there would be one tax-eater for every taxpayer.

MELVIN A. TRAYLOR, eminent Chicago banker, after emphasizing these ominous facts, said:

"I believe that a general sales tax, in conjunction with a proper income tax, offers an inviting field for exploration, and I am inclined to think possesses possibilities for the solution of many of our tax problems."

Indorsement of a scientific sales tax by this type of citizen should remove whatever doubts may still linger in the minds of a few Washington solons concerning the wisdom of utilizing this equitable method of extricating the federal government from its financial dilemma.

Certainly, NO EQUALLY ACCEPTABLE SUBSTITUTE HAS BEEN PROFFERED.

Is it significant that financial sentiment and financial activities have notably improved since it became more and more evident that Congress would embrace a sales tax?

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Marry the Boy!

First it was Bertrand Russell and Judge Lindsey. Now it's a leading university where, according to report, a new course has been established for love-affairs without benefit of clergy, "mothers' licenses" and a taboo on family life.

Oh well, if you believe all you hear, there will soon be neither marrying nor giving in marriage, this side of Paradise! This world will be just like Heaven, for the MEN—only more so.

The modern man can see no really vital reason why he SHOULD marry, anyhow. Not for a home and a housekeeper. No home could possibly have all the comforts of a bachelor apartment. And maid-service is cheaper than a wife. Besides, a hired maid doesn't leave her hair in the comb. Or cry if you forget to kiss her on the way out, mornings.

* * *

As for love and kisses—does a man need to marry for these? Don't make me smile! He may far more likely have to marry in order to ESCAPE them. In fact, marriage is a man's only sanctuary from ardent and pursuing women.

The happiest day of a personable man's life is that in which he can stand behind some brave little woman's back with his fingers crossed, and DARE the women to kiss him.

And THAT'S what a man needs a wife for! To PROTECT him—and shoo the other women off! And she can do that far better with a wedding ring and marriage certificate than with any high-flown theories.

A man without a wife is so aimless, reckless and detached—and constantly in danger of following his own impulses to his own destruction. Every man needs a wife as a compass, ballast, accelerator and emergency brake. Some brave, strong woman to steady him, back him up, and keep him from getting into mix-ups, going off the deep-end, dropping lighted matches into the waste paper basket and catching cold. And, only a woman who has him legally TIED to her can do that!

* * *

A woman can stand alone and get by, somehow, without running amuck. But it is positively pitiful to see an innocent, unprotected, unattached male trying to battle his way through a merciless world, and preserve his misogyny.

So, as long as men are weak and women are wise, little old marriage will probably run right along on the same old wheels.

Marry the boy, dear girl, and make an Honest Man of him!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 14.—Diary of a modern Pepys: This day determining to line work shop walls with built-in book shelves and breakfasting with Irvin Cobb on stewed rhubarb and Major Dickson's peppery sausage and through town, meeting Frank Hope, the sage of Great Neck, and Arthur Moso from Paris.

Then to the Essex to say farewell to Helen Menken against her trek to Hollywood. And picking up my wife at a modiste's, to Roxy's apartment where Frank Buck, the mighty animal hunter, told of a fight to death between a cobra and tiger near Singapore, as thrilling a tale as ever I heard.

In the evening to the Messmore Kendall's dinner sitting between two charming ladies, Claire Boothe Brokaw and Mrs. George Fitzmaurice. And among others there were Myra Kingsley, Donald Freeman, the Dick Davisons and Yascha Bunchuk's orchestra played brave gypsy tunes.

A spooky tale, with a death-ray twist, is going the rounds. A Hindu mystic at a dinner party in Sutton Place related lunatic tales of mysticism in the Far East. And the subject of death-rays in future wars came up. The seer believed that some day control by evil minds would kill. The hostess scoffed and, as wine flowed, became a trifle vitriolic toward her Oriental guest. Departing, he bowed over her hand and murmured: "I suggest, Madam, look into her gold fish bowl." She did. All the fish floated lifeless at the top.

I confess to no belief in mind reading, yet I recently saw a manifestation of its trickery that left a roomful of intelligent people speechless. The divertissement was offered at the home of M. H. Aylesworth, following a dinner party. The mentalist was a Valentino-looking fellow named Dunninger, suavely dripping with mystic abracadaba. Guests were asked to write questions on anything in their possession—envelopes, cuffs or what not. Contrary to the usual custom these questions were not collected. Each questioner took a gloriously naive oath to not having seen or ever heard of the mind reader. All were asked to concentrate on questions they had written.

My wife, for instance, wrote: "Who is K. G. and where born?" Nothing else. After writing the question secretively she placed it in a vanity case. No one came near. The mystic suddenly exclaimed: "K. G. is Kate Gatewood. Your mother's maiden name. She was born May 1, 1854, in Gallipolis, O." The answer was so absolutely correct I spent the rest of the evening peeking under chairs. Fifty other questions were so answered.

* * *

In the midst of the performance, a guest received a telephone call from Los Angeles about a business matter. This could have been a frame-up but so happened it was not. The Los Angeles caller was asked to think of a number in four digits. As he did, the mind-reader jotted them down, like ghosts on parade, on a blackboard. And Jim Quirk, receiving the call, put on his hat and coat and in the tension of delirium made a chalk-faced exit, trying desperately to smooth down a sudden pompadour.

The Tuskegee Choir of 150 voices will sing spirituals at the Radio City Music Hall... Katherine Brush has the most completely equipped modernistic study in town in the fashionable Sutton Place neighborhood...The tenor in the Men About Town radio trio is a former Campbellite evangelist.

A venerable shawled woman nodded on a camp chair at the Plaze entrance to the park. Her gnarled hand held a thin leash of colored balloons. A jovial gent with expensive paunch and fat cigar came along, held the lighted cigar end to the ambient strand until it floated off in a soapsudsy sheen. Then he pressed a $10 bill in her hand, smiled, tipped his hat and went on. Fun in the city!

THE CHARMER

By Winifred Black

The Has Been was talking to the Maybe Some Day the other morning.

"Son," said the Has Been, "I'll tell you what's happening to you. You are not so exceptionally good looking—oh, well enough, of course, but you'll never stop the clock, as they say down in Main street—and you're not particularly brilliant. Some day you'll perhaps amount to something. In the meantime, I'll tell you what's happening to the girls.

"You have what we used to call in the old country the 'silver chain.' And that 'silver chain' draws all the girls toward you, whether they want to come or not. It's fine while it lasts, son, but when that chain breaks"—The Has Been shook his head.

Son laughed. "Oh, well," he said, "until it does break—so long!" And out of the door he went, with his hat on the side of his head, whistling, and keeping step to a sort of gay tune as he walked.

The silver chain; that's it! I've wondered about it a lot of times. It isn't good looks calls women to a man. It isn't brain. It isn't even good nature, though I have noticed that most of the silver chain people are good-humored; at least, they act so.

This particular young man, now. He is good-humored, light-hearted and dainty, with a light step and a gay laugh; and all the girls are crazy about him—just absolutely crazy. They'll pass up the finest fellow in the world for the sake of this careless, good-humored young fellow, who doesn't really care the snap of his finger for them. Maybe that's why they like him—because he does not care for them.

But that isn't what makes it, after all. I know a man of middle age who carries a silver chain, too, in his vest pocket. He's clever. He's a brilliant talker. He has a quick, active brain, and he knows how to pay lovely compliments—not old-fashioned ones, you know.

This man isn't even good-looking, but the women are all crazy about him—old and young, rich and poor. All the stenographers wait until he comes into the office; and the rich widows just simply flock to his office door. He doesn't care the snap of his finger for any of them, either.

The other man I know, who carries the silver chain in his pocket, is gloomy, morose, bad-tempered. He doesn't believe very much in women, he says, and he pretends he doesn't care anything for them. But he does; he cares a lot.

He is a handsome man, in a dark, romantic style. He looks as if he might be a sort of a Mephisto, when he gets older. You can account for him, because he is so good looking and so clever. But the other two—well, it's just a silver chain, that's all. Some have it, and some can't find it to save their lives.

It's the same with women. Have you not seen a roomful of pretty girls fade into nothingness when some girl, who hadn't even a good complexion, breezed into the room, and began to make all the men sit up and take notice?

What is it about her that attracts them so? You tell me. I can't even guess.

High spirit? Well, that's part of it, maybe. Gayety? Perhaps. A light heart and a light foot? Sometimes.

But I know a girl who doesn't care to dance, who wouldn't play a game of tennis to save her life, who never read a book through since she was born—she just sits around in corners and looks wistful. And she never sits there alone.

Men are all crazy about her—absolutely daft. They think she's soulful. She doesn't smoke and she does not drink. She doesn't like to go to wild parties, she says; but I've noticed that she always goes to the parties just the same, and sit in the corner and looks sad about it.

And she always has the best-looking and cleverest man in the room sitting in the corner with her. Usually he begs her to go home early and not be contaminated by the rest of the guests.

They're always trying to analyze the quality of charm—those people who make a business of studying things and human beings—but I never saw anyone get right down to it.

Sometimes the people with charm are selfish, and not particularly clever, and not even half way good-looking; but—oh, well, it's just the silver chain, that's all.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Sorrow's a strange and tricky thing.

You'd naturally think that any sane and healthy human being would despise sorrow, avoid it whenever possible, get rid of it with all speed; and, if you put it up to any grieving soul, they'll assure you that that is exactly how they do feel and act about sorrow.

BUT, AS A MATTER OF FACT, SORROW IS ONE OF HUMANITY'S FAVORITE INDOOR SPORTS! THERE IS NO HABIT MORE PERSISTENT, NOR MORE DAMNABLY CONVENIENT, THAN THE HABIT OF GRIEF.

General opinion to the contrary, it takes real courage and determination to be a happy person. For the world expects much of happy people.

There are no excuses for the woman who is happy. She is supposed to take all the jumps, energetically and cheerfully. She mustn't loaf or duck or whine or demand undue consideration.

But the sorrowful soul—she's different. Everyone is kind to sorrowers. Everyone makes things easy for them. Everyone pays a great deal of attention to them. A sorrower can be as cussed and cowardly as she pleases, and few will hold her responsible, for isn't her poor dear heart broken?

And so it comes to pass that many ornery humans actually make a racket of their broken hearts; and other silly souls cherish and dramatize their grief until they become really vain about it.

Anne Parrish has wise words on that subject in that diabolically clever new novel, "LOADS OF LOVE." (Read that book—if you have the courage, or can kid yourself into thinking it doesn't apply to YOU.)

Katherine—lovely, sensitive, exquisitely wretched Katherine—has lost the man she loves. She has been grieving. To be exact, she has been grieving for 131 pages. She has become more beautiful and more appealing than ever in her misery, but that does not alter the fact that she has used up gobs and gobs of busy people's time and energy and generous service.

And at least Aunt Caroline—downright, delightful old Aunt Caroline, who has wrangled through her own tragedy in the years long past—is getting a little fed up with Katherine's calamity.

"It's lasting too long," says she to Uncle Thomas. "If she goes on this way, it will become a habit. I don't like this business of turning sorrow into a shade hat."

Thomas looked bewildered.

"People do—until they get so used to it they can't bear the light. And after a while they get a little vain about the becoming shadow it casts. We're a crazy lot, able to be vain about real unhappiness. 'Look, please! Isn't my wound a deep one?'"

Stop and think about those words. Look honestly at that grief in your own life.

Are you taking that grief honestly, simply, unselfishly, with healthy reticence? Are you bearing it bravely, consuming your own smoke?

Or is it becoming a habit with you? Are you using it as an escape, an alibi, a tool, A DECORATION?

Grief, you say, has marred your life.

But is it grief that is marring your life—or is it your selfish, silly use of grief?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Wayfarer

Only the wanderer knows
How far the way may be
Beyond, where ocean flows,
And on through a strange country;
How cold the eyes that gaze
An instant in his own;
How vast the city's maze,
How crowded, yet how lone!

Only the wanderer finds
How unknown trails can bring Back some old road that winds
Through his remembering!
Long though the way he fares,
Restless, while years slip by,
Still in old scenes he shares
Under each alien sky.

Only the wanderer learns
Of lures that never wane,
When in the end he turns
His steps toward home again.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

"Just my luck!" exclaims someone—you have heard it said often.

It is a sort of complaining habit that some folk have.

Of course, they refer to ill-luck—they never would say such a thing if good luck happened their way.

But why not as readily refer to your good fortunes?

You get lucky breaks but you take them as a matter to be expected.

It is your due, is the attitude you take when you get what you want.

But how you can sputter and lament when you have a bit of misfortune.

If you are always standing with a chip on your shoulder and expecting a turn of bad luck after a time your friends will begin looking for it for you.

They will be constantly asking you "what's happened today?"

And if you are not careful, you will get the reputation of being "Hard-Luck Charlie" or some such name characteristic of your misfortunes.

So don't harp on your ill luck too much.
